THE PUBLIC sees with pleasure J. P. Morgan financing ten million of bonds for the Fiat Automobile Company of Italy, and Clarence Dillon employing his financial genius in behalf of German industries.

Americans gladly send money to Europe to be used to building up industries, giving work to mechanics and building prosperity of friendly nations.

What Americans dislike is that United States funds should be used to finance equipment of armies to help our European friends to kill each other.

TURKISH GIRLS, you will be glad to hear, have lost interest in the harem, with its thick cushions, pantalettes, eunuchs, sweetmeats, attar of roses, bow-strings and conspiracies.

Young girls graduating from the Constantinople Women's College turn their backs on the seraglio and the veil. One of them is coming to take a job in Henry Ford's hospital in Detroit.

SOON THERE will be no harem romance except in Montesquieu's "Persian Letters." Read that book. Ladies will be specially interested in the description of a Mohammedan heaven for lady Mohammedans

BRIGHTON MAN'S BODY ON LOCOMOTIVE PILOT

Burned by electricity and crumpled in death, the body of Francis L. Attridge, twenty-nine, of No. 28 Atkins street, Brighton, was found on the engine of the Boston train early today at Woodlawn station in the Bronx, New York.

Engineer Howard Attmore of Portchester, driver of the huge electric mogul drawing the express, alighted to inspect his engine when the Woodlawn stop was made, and was astounded to discover the body on the pilot.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Attridge and was born in Pepperell 26 years ago, was a World War veteran and served in the navy. He was a chauffeur.

According to his mother, he left home last Tuesday, saying he was going to New York to take a job a friend had offered him. His family had not heard from him since. Besides his parents he leaves four sisters and brothers.

The police were notified when

SHORTAGE MYSTERY IS SOLVED ONLY ONE MAN BEING INVOLVED

Declaring the mystery of the financial irregularities at Braves Field has been solved, Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, announced today the ousting of "Eddie" Riley as secretary of the club and the appointment of Edward P. Cunningham, Boston sport writer, in his place.

Judge Fuchs said the matter is now a closed incident and no police action will be taken. He refused to state the amount of money involved or to comment on the estimates, which have ranged from $2,000 to many thousands.

Only one employe of the Braves was involved and he assumed entire responsibility for the shortages the Braves' owner asserted.

Edwin L. Riley, the ousted secretary, for countless years a popular figure in Boston's baseball circles, was formerly secretary of the Red Sox for twelve years and was dis

$1,000,000 RUM CARGO SEIZED ON HUB SHIP

Value of more than $1,000,000 was set on the liquor cargo of the steamship Cretan, seized by customs officers at Battery Wharf, in an estimate made today by Deputy Collector Thomas Finnegan while the search of her holds was still going on.

The capture of the Cretan in her bold attempt to land a huge supply of liquor in Boston, together with the seizure of the schooner Sumner off Highland Light, Cape Cod, was the answer of the Federal authorities to a vigorous drive by the bootleg interests to reopen this port as a gateway for a flood of alcohol.

More than 80,000 gallons of alcohol, with a total estimated value of $800,000, on the basis of $10 a gallon which customs officials set, were found aboard the Cretan today and stowed away in the double bottoms

U. S. COURT WIPES OUT 12-MILE RUM SHIP LINE

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—There is no "twelve-mile limit" preventing seizure beyond that point for American ships, according to a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals made public today in reversing a finding of the United States District Court of the District of Connecticut.

The Connecticut decision had sustained exception to a government suit filed against the American rum-runner Underwriter.

The Underwriter was seized beyond the twelve-mile limit, a fact upon which one of the exceptions was based.

ANDREWS DISGUSTED WITH 'DRY' SERVICE

Buffalo, N. Y., July 8 (I.N.S.).—Prohibition Administrator Eugene Roberts of the third enforcement area will step out of office coincidental with the announced resignation in September of Brigadier-General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, he announced upon his return from Washington where he held a conference with his chief.

"My boss," said Major Roberts, referring to Gen. Andrews, "seemed a very disgusted man. He is all through with the service and would have resigned last week if he could have had his way, but extreme pressure was brought to bear from the White House and he was forced to promise to remain on the job at least until he returns from England."

Major Roberts said Andrews is "so sick with the whole affair that he took the ocean trip to recuperate his shattered nerves."

WHITE COAT WORN BY MURDERER PURCHASED AT MORGAN MEMORIAL

The white linen Summer coat dropped by the slayer of Alexander Rosenauer, Massachusetts avenue jeweler, in flight, was identified positively today as one sold over the counter of the Morgan Memorial men's shop.

Identification was made by Lester H. Wallace, manager of the Morgan Memorial men's store, who said the red marking "20" on the coat was one of his price markings.

Further, Wallace said, the coat must have been sold at "Memorial" within the past few days, as it was one of a lot disposed of.

HERRICK PROTESTS U.S. VETS IN PARIS PARADE

Paris, July 8 (A.P.).—Ambassador Myron T. Herrick is disturbed at the decision of the Association of American Volunteers in the French army to take part in a proposed demonstration Sunday in opposition to ratification of the American debt settlement.

Under present plans the American Volunteers will be stationed before the Alan Seeger monument in the Place de Etats Unis, where they will receive a wreath from the French Veterans Association as it marches past.

Ambassador Herrick said today the posters announcing the parade were a direct slap at the United States and at himself. Consequently, he feels that if Americans take any part in the parade, it will embarrass him officially. He felt it was unthinkable that the American Volunteers would bear a share in the demonstration.

MYSTERIOUS RUBY RING NEW CLUE IN SLAYING OF JEWELER

TAXI MAN SAW ROW OVER GEM

Previously it had been believed that the jeweler was a holdup victim, but statements to the police by Earl Ray, a taxi driver, who was in the shop when the negro slayer entered, have directed them on the other track.

The murderer probably knew Rosenauer, had had transactions with him and shot down the jeweler in a quarrel over the ring found on the shop floor, according to the new police theory.

As the hunt for the slayer was narrowing down, and as one suspect was being questioned closely at East Dedham street station, Ray told of being in the jewelry store when the slayer entered. Rosenauer made a move to wait on the man whom he greeted on entrance, but the negro said:

PLENTY OF TIME.

"Wait on him first. I've got plenty of time. I may use up four or five minutes of your time."

he started out for the street. On the way he saw the negro produce a jeweler's envelope on which was written "Gene Jackson" and from which he took the three-ruby ring.

"Why, these are good stones," Rosenauer exclaimed, holding the ring to the light after buffing the stones with chamois. "Can't you see the shine?"

FOUND ON FLOOR.

Then Ray was out of the store. The ring and envelope were found on the floor later, and police today located a Gene Jackson, whom they found to be a cripple. He professed no knowledge of the killing, but he will be questioned, according to the police.

Meanwhile, Charles Greer, colored suspect arrested in Sterling street, Roxbury, was under questioning by the police and an endeavor was being made to trace back on the white coat dropped by the slayer.

FINGERPRINT ON GUN.

With a fingerprint found on the murderer's revolver, left in his wrecked sedan, and the two laundry marks on the white coat, together with several minor clues, the police are confident that they have sufficient filmy material out of which to trace and build a strong case against the slayer.

According to his police inquisitors, Greer, a laundry worker, can account for all of his time yesterday—with corroboration—except between 1:30 and 3 p. m., when he claims to have been out to lunch.

COOLIDGE MAY TAKE PART IN CAMPAIGN

Worcester, July 8 (A.P.).—Senator William M. Butler, who is in Worcester today conferring with party chieftains with reference to organization work here, said it is possible that President Coolidge may take part in the campaign.

He said that while it is too early to tell, he felt that the defeat of pro-World Court Senators in other States would not affect the Massachusetts campaign.

He was the guest of George F. Booth at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Hotel Bancroft and received an ovation when he was introduced. He said he is ready to discuss issues with his opponents, but at present he finds no opponent and no issue.

PLAN TO SETTLE N. Y. STRIKE

New York, July 8 (I.N.S.).—The possibility of an early settlement of New York's subway strike was seen today when Edward P. Lavin, head of the strikers' union, asserted at a meeting of the strikers that within the next forty-eight hours he would announce plans which would change materially the entire aspect of the strike. He declined to disclose the details in advance.

Other developments today included the announcement that a delegation of business men would visit Mayor Walker, demanding that there be a settlement by arbitration, and an assertion by the strikers that many maintenance of way men were preparing to secede from the I. R. T. brotherhood and join the new union.

CHILD DRAGGED BY HORSE HAS EVEN CHANCE TO LIVE

Rochester, N. H., July 8.—Dragged nearly a half mile over a macadam road by a runaway horse, Elinor Hanson, nine-year-old daughter of Louis Hanson of Strafford Bow Lake, was so badly injured that at the Afbott Hospital it was stated she had about an even chance of recovery.

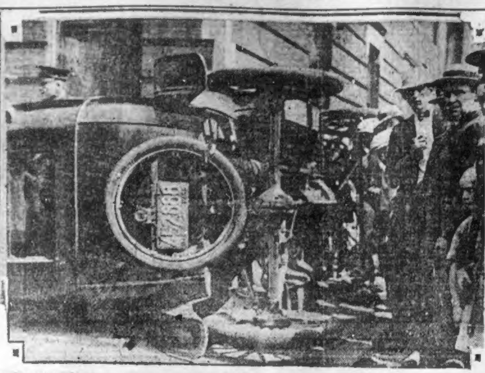
MANY OBSTACLES OVERCOME BY THUG FLEEING DEATH SCENE

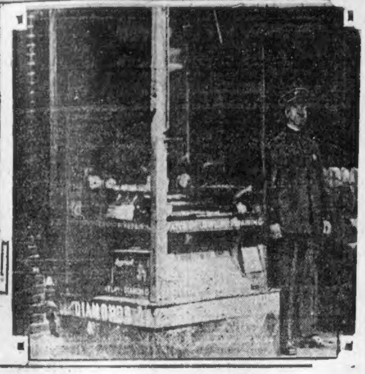
KNOCKED DOWN

Two women made a futile attempt to check the thug's progress after he killed Alec Rosneau at No. 408 Massachusetts avenue.



HIS FLIGHT CAR WRECKED

The machine in which the thug fled the scene of the slaying had been stolen three hours earlier in the South End. His race for freedom was temporarily checked at Columbus avenue and Weston street, Roxbury, when the sedan was wrecked.



SCENE OF SLAYING

Alec Rosneau was alone in his store, the Bay State Jewelry Company, when he was shot down. Police describe the thug as a light-skinned negro, 22 years, five feet six inches tall and weighing 170 pounds.

DEBS CURTSEY BEFORE KING

London, July 8. Universal.—The third court of the London season at Buckingham Palace displayed some remarkable gowns, the most outstanding of which was an all silver dress worn by Lady Louis Mountbatten. It was composed entirely of silver sequins, and yet with its train the gown weighed only 16 ounces.

Miss Florence Kip Clarke, of New York, who make a double curtsey to the throne, wore a debutante gown of fine silver lace cut en princesse and delicately embroidered in pearls and silver mounted over an underdress of cloth of silver bordered with silver lace.

Miss Catherine Crerar, of Chicago, another debutante, wore a pastel tinted gown with mother-of-pearl paillettes on coral pink mousseline de sole.

Other Americans presented by Mrs. Houghton, wife of the American Ambassador, were Mrs. Beardall of Virginia, Miss Josephine Grant of San Francisco, Mrs. Robert Mactee of Baltimore, and Misses Thalia Millett, Alice Preston and Marvin Breckinridge of New York.

NATHAN ULLIAN

O'Shea and John Cullinan of the Dudley street station.

FILES EXCEPTIONS.

Ullian has already filed exceptions, but they will not be considered by the Supreme Court in any event until January, when that body convenes. Refusal of the court to stay sentence forces Ullian to serve a large part of his jail term before he can press the appeal, if he desires to do so.

In passing sentence, Judge Gray said that he was in full accord with the verdict returned by the jury and that the offence must be considered serious.

"The result of the acts that Ullian had been found guilty of committing," said Judge Gray, "was to obstruct proper administration of justice in the Commonwealth. As a lawyer he should have jealously guarded the reputation of the court and he failed to do so.

"I shall sentence him on one count to one year in jail and to pay a fine of $500."

He did not consider the offense, however, a State Prison crime, said Judge Gray. Five of the counts of which Ullian was found guilty were filed.

BRIGHTON MAN FOUND DEAD

the body was found and it was taken to Fordham Hospital, where physicians declared the man had died from burns. It was not mangled in any way.

Identification was made from a chauffeur's license in a pocket, which bore Attridge's name, and from other papers.

It is believed, according to the New York police, that Attridge crept on the pilot of the electric engine between New Haven and Woodlawn.

The electric mogul is attached at New Haven, replacing the steam engine, and at Woodlawn, a stop is made to switch from overhead to third rail current. Attridge, in some way while riding, came in contact with the electric current.

SEARCH S51 FOR BODIES TODAY

bodies within the steel sides of submarine, none at all, or only three or four, was a matter of much speculation among the men who are charged with the task of removing the bodies.

Announcement was made by Lieutenant Commander Edward Ellsberg, who directed the engineering part of the salvage of the S51, that it would not be necessary to enter the steel hulk by use of acetylene torches. "We were inside the S51 while she was at the bottom of the Atlantic," he said: "We went in through the hatches. We can enter through the hatches in dry dock much more easily."

INVESTIGATION ON.

Rigid investifation by the government into the cause of the disaster, which resulted in the submarine being rammed and sunk last September off Block Island, R. I., by the coastal liner City of Rome, will be pushed, it is understood, after Secretary Wilbur's visit.

Pathetic incidents marked the return of the "floating coffin" to New York. Tear-stained eyes of mothers, who had come to the Navy Yard to claim their dead, vividly recalled the disaster and its underlying tragedy.

An impressive memorial service was held at the Brooklyn Navy Yard shortly after the S51 was put into drydock. The ceremony was attended by naval officers and men and hundreds of civilians.

Four members of the salvage forces, who were mentioned for their conspicuous bravery during the raising of the submarine, formed the guard of honor. They were:

Chief Torpedo Men James Frazer and Francis Smith, Gunner's Mate John Wickwire and Seaman Solomon Schissel.

COLORS SOUNDED.

The flag on the S51 was raised to the top of the mast and then lowered to half-mast. Buglers sounded "colors" and "taps."

During the night the S51 was lashed to her sister submarine, the S50. This morning the stricken craft was drydocked, supported on pontoons.

The first work done was to clean the S51 from debris. This will take six hours, it is said. The breach will then be closed, the water drawn out, air pumped through the vessel and the search started for the bodies. During the search, the S51 will be in the hands of the medical department.

HUB IS DUE FOR RUM DELUGE

where the searchers all but missed them, a big cache of priceless liquors were discovered.

ASK BOND OF $50,000.

A blanket bond of $50,000 for captain and crew of the Cretan was asked by an assistant Federal district attorney when the men were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Jenney on charges linked with the alleged smuggling attempt.

While the search of the Cretan was continuing the Sunner, which was seized by the Coast Guard patrol boat 156, was brought to Boston by the cutter Morrill and placed under guard at the Appraisers Stores.

According to the United States authorities, she sailed from Halifax with clearance papers for Havana and carrying a cargo of 2,500 cases of alcohol and 500 cases of other wet goods. Since leaving Halifax 500 cases have been disposed of, it is charged.

Captain Simeon Guy and the crew were taken to the custom house for questioning by Deputy Finnegan. The Sunner was one of seven ships which appeared on Rum Row, it is alleged, and she was the biggest of the fleet.

UNCOVER BIG CARGO.

Only by long and diligent searching of the Cretan's holds did the customs men uncover her liquor cargo. Hour by hour as the search went on, more and more was revealed until the total reached proportions that amazed the searchers.

A week ago the ship cleared from Boston with a cargo of waste paper, mesh wire and soft coal for Portland and Philadelphia. The Portland stop was supposed to be to add more cargo.

Neither of these ports recorded the appearance of the vessel and when she put back into Boston to add waste paper cargo customs officials boarded her.

The authorities are undetermined whether the ship took on her cargo at Rum Row or steamed out to St. Pierre, Miquelon, off Newfoundland, and loaded there.

One feature that is under investigation is the fact that four men listed on the ship's papers were not found on board.

The Cretan probably will be forfeited to the government under the law governing smuggling craft.

BELIEVED RESOLD.

The Cretan was sold by the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company to the Atlas Chartering Corporation of Baltimore, about a month ago. It is understood that the ship has since then been sold again to the Consolidated Navigation Company. She has a net tonnage of 2350 and sails under the American flag.

The men held are Capt. August Alkone, Frank Beddell, 40, of Baltimore; Philip McIntyre, 41, of Hoboken, N. J.; Henry Pool, 40, of Baltimore; Frank Miller, 34, John Plinket, 40, Gus Gurgensen, 35, Arnold Lembeck, 35, Albert Johnsen, 25, Gus Schildt, 24, Otto Mendell, 33, Charles Aron, 28, all of Hoboken, N. J.; John Morganti, 43, Harry Apel, 34, Frank Brennan, 26, Alphonso Toboltz, 42, Henry Mettger, 29, John Curtin, 28, George Nilson, 37, and Frank O'Hearon, 30, all of New York; Frank Teasson, 45, and Charles Marino, 31, both of Philadelphia, and William Patten, 25, of San Francisco.

DEATH IN 'JOY-RIDE' PROBED

Federal and State officials today began an investigation into the death of Mrs. Gertrude Berry Moulton, of No. 27 Johnston terrace, Cliftondale, who died in Massachusetts General Hospital, after being transported by rail more than 200 miles with a severed windpipe suffered in an automobile collision at Machias, Me.

Washington County, Maine, officials said the woman was returning from Yarmouth, N. S., in a car bearing Massachusetts registry and driven by a Dr. Harris.

At the time of the accident, Walter E. Moulton, a traveling salesman, believed his wife was visiting friends in Providence, and was stunned when he was summoned to the hospital, where he found her dying from a fractured skull and slashed throat.

His friends declared today that he will bring suit for $50,000 as a result of her death and the circumstances surrounding her strange trip from home.

Federal authorities are investigating for the purpose of determining whether the Mann act is involved, while State authorities are concerned over the manner in which the woman was carried on a train clear to Boston when there are many hospitals much nearer the scene of the accident.

The accident occurred on June 25 and the woman died three days later in Massachusetts General hospital. The news, however, was kept secret and leaked out when the medical examiner's report was forwarded to Maine.

Dr. Lorne Wilborne Harris of No. 249 Linncoln avenue, Cliftondale, Mrs. Moulton's family physician, was away from home at the time of the accident and another physician said he was told the doctor was on a motor trip to Nova Scotia

Dr., Harris does not deny making a trip to Nova Scotia, but denied having had an accident.

Mrs. Moulton, it was learned at her home, left on June 2 and a telegram was later received from Worcester saying she was on the way to Providence to spend a few days with friends. Her husband was then on the road following his occupation as a salesman.

COP FIRED; TO HAVE HEARING

Patrolman Albert C. Lohnes of the Charlestown division was dismissed from the police department today for neglect of duty and demanded a public hearing, which will be given him next Monday.

Lohnes was arrested a year ago when he was alleged to have pulled his police revolver and fired at a group of men he found talking with his wife when he returned home from duty. He was acquitted in court, but was given 210 hours' punishment duty by his police superiors.

He firmly denied the charges that brought him to trial before three police captains last week. He was alleged to have failed to pull boxes while on his beat and to have made no report to the station when finishing his tour of duty.

In spite of his insistence that he fulfilled his duties in every respect he was found guilty and Commissioner Wilson fixed dismissal as the punishment. Lohnes is thirty years old and a World War veteran.

Rome, July 8 (A.P.).—Sunny Italy has seen less of the sun this Summer than for a generation. Instead of the usual rainless period, beginning early in May and continuing until late September, Rome and Naples have had downpours almost daily. A violent storm broke over Naples and Rome has had incessant rain the last 24 hours. Northern Italy also is having bad weather. Snow seven feet deep is reported in the valleys.

INDICT FIVE IN CAST STONE CONSPIRACY

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—Investigation of an alleged conspiracy between labor representatives to control installation of cast stone in building work in the metropolitan area has resulted in Federal grand jury indictments against Michael W. Mitchell of Indianapolis, international president of the Journeymen Stone cutters and four others.

All are charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws. Their operations have affected the installation of more than $2,500,000 in cast stone work annually, according to evidence presented to the grand jury. Out-of-town manufacturers placing contracts with New York builders have found delivery refused owing to strike or labor difficulties threatened.

HIS 2 DIVORCES HELD INVALID

Springfield, July 8.—Like vaccinations on some children, divorces fail to "take" on Horace Holt of Hartford.

In Probate Court today he heard Judge Charles L. Long decide that the divorce he obtained in Yucatan last February was gained by fraud and is, therefore, void, making the second divorce that Holt has won and lost.

Because of his marriage to Miss Ann M. Casey of West Springfield in Florida after the Yucatan divorce, Holt is in a predicament and he testified he and his "wife" do not dare stay in Massachusetts over night.

He first obtained a divorce in Middlesex County, but his wife's attorneys carried an appeal to the Supreme Court and it was found the couple resided in Springfield instead of in Middlesex County when the action was brought. The Supreme Court cancelled the decree.

SHE 'HOPES FOR BEST, FEARING WORST'

Millionaire Holds Own, but Lets Name of Mysterious "Mrs. X" Slip Out

Newport, R. I., July 8.—Hoping for the best, but looking for the worst, Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong," society Portia," squared away today for her second full day as cross-examiner of her husband whose suit for divorce is being heard in Superior Court.

During her brief sway as her own lawyer, Mrs. Budlong has grilled the husband, Milton J. Budlong, wealthy oil man, relative to kissing nursemaids and waitresses and to associations with a "Mrs. X."

Not sanguine at all over the outcome of the trial was Mrs. Budlong as she waited today during a delay in beginning the session.

"I hope for the best but look for the worst," she declared.

PUBLICITY IRKS HIM.

She laughed when told Budlong was said to have complained of too much notoriety connected with the case.

"I don't see why he should complain, since he brought the action," commented Mrs. Budlong briskly. "He should have thought of the notoriety angle before he started the suit."

Introduction of nursemaids, waitresses and "Mrs. X.," who was, at first, mysterious, were the high lights of the cross-examination of husband by wife.

NAMES "THE WOMAN."

Inadvertently Budlong allowed the name of Mrs. Mercer, No. 815 Park avenue, New York, to slip from his lips, although the court had ruled the mystery woman should be referred to only as "Mrs. X."

To persistent questions relative to having kissed a waitress and a nursemaid at "The Reef," Budlong entered a flat denial. He denied buying anything for the nursemaid or ever remembering sending her for his trousers from a bedroom.

The mysterious "Mrs. X." he admitted knowing and said he might possibly have been with her in her apartment, but after Mrs. Budlong left him.

PLAYS LONE HAND.

Will Rogers, the comedian, came into the limelight when Edward P. Jackson of Philadelphia, a friend of the family, told of the famous episode at the Follies when reference was made to the shirt tossing incident. Jackson was deeply humiliated, he said, when the audience roared at the sally.

Mrs. Budlong is playing a lone hand without counsel or friends. Occasionally she makes the mistake of asking an argumentary question but a kind gray haired judge, Edward W. Blodgett, leads her from her plight with instructions to ask direct questions.

The spectators are the friends of her husband and, in contrast to her situation, he is well fortified with counsel, who are quickly to their feet when Mrs. Budlong oversteps the bounds of legal propriety.

MENTAL CONDITION.

Q.—Mr. Budlong, did you ever say to anyone that your wife was crazy? A.—No, I never said that to anyone.

Q.—Did you in the Spring of 1924 advise me to go and see a physician about my mental condition. A.—Not about your mental condition. As I remember it, I met you at the railroad station in Fall River and that I said that I thought you were in extremely nervous condition and I said that I would like to have you go and see a physician.

Q.—Didn't you have Mr. Phillip's (Budlong's attorney) employ persons to watch Mrs. Budlong when she testified at another trial? A.—No, I never hired anyone to watch you.

Q.—Didn't you one time say to Mrs. Budlong that you liked to talk to her when she was rational? A.—I did not use the word "rational."

The next question came out of a clear sky and judge, spectators and Budlong and his counsel broke into roars of laughter.

Q.—Do you admit that you kissed the nursemaid at the "Reef?" Budlong smiled none too pleasantly, hesitated for a moment and declared he never kissed the nursemaid.

Mrs. Budlong questioned her husband about a mysterious Mrs. X, and it brought out his denial that he promised the lady of mystery that he would never be reconciled to his wife.

DIDN'T ANSWER LETTER.

Q.—Did you receive a letter of reconciliation shortly before the filing of this petition? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you pay any attention to it? (Softly) A.—No.

Couldn't you have at least answered the letter? She asked in almost a whisper.

Objection was made and it was sustained by the court.

Q.—Wasn't there another letter of reconciliation received by you in 1923? A.—No.

TWO OTHER WITNESSES.

Here counsel for Budlong said: "No such letter ever existed."

"I'll produce," said Mrs. Budlong.

Budlong had one chance to breath freely during the day. That came when two witnesses were put on missed from that position by former President Lannin at a time when whisperings of ticket jobbing were circulating.

Lanning, however, absolved Riley of any connection with irregularities and later the National League club took him on. That was in October, 1916.

"As a result of a complete investigation, the Boston National League Club discovered irregularities at the turnstiles at Braves Field," said President Fuchs in a formal statement.

"The employe involved admitted being entirely responsible for such irregularities and improper conditions. The investigation further disclosed affirmatively that everyone connected with the game of baseball here was giving his best and honest effort to the game itself and to the Braves.

"We are pleased to announce that we have been fortunate in securing the services of Edward F. Cunningham, sporting editor of the Boston Traveler, as secretary of the club to succeed Edwin L. Riley.

"The unfortunate situation has been solved and we believe that it would serve no good purpose to further comment or make any further statement in regard to it.

(Signed) Emil Fuchs."

Shortages are believed to have resulted from failure of a club official to turn over to the club treasurer full receipts at not only regular league games, but at other sport gatherings held at Braves Field. Boston College, Holy Cross and other colleges whose football teams have used Braves Field, are said to have been affected by the shortages, as well as fight clubs which have rented the park.

An official who was questioned when discovered at the turnstiles is said to have explained that he was "oiling" them. Manipulation of the turnstiles has figured in the shortage, investigators believe.

Rutland, Vt., July 8.—Harry M. Royce of Wollaston, Mass., made what he believed would be a long shot with his driver at the Rutland Country Club. The ball, however, struck a rock, ricocheted, and struck his eye. The eyeball was ruptured and Royce has lost the sight of his right eye.

seas retains her allegiance to the United States," the decision recorded. "It is quite well recognized that every nation has the right to bind its own subjects to its own laws in every place."

WAS COASTWISE SHIP.

The action was based upon five alleged causes. First, that liquor was being transported aboard the Underwriter; second, a quantity of intoxicants was found on the vessel; third, alleged illegal transportation of intoxicants; fourth, that the Underwriter was engaged for another trade than that for which she was licensed, and fifth, she was engaged at making a foreign voyage without giving up her enrollment and license as a coastwise vessel.

As to the first, second and third causes, the finding of the Connecticut court is sustained, the law permitting seizure of ocean vessels being limited to certain specific acts and the Underwriter having been seized beyond the 12-mile limit and there being no evidence apparently that she violated the prohibition law within those limits.

CHEER KIDDIES IN HOSPITAL

Ninety kiddies undergoing treatment at New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, Newton Centre, were entertained today by the Boston Evening American and Metropolitan Theatre.

As the children were unable, because of their infirmities, to go to the theatre, the Boston Evening American took several acts from the big "Circus Week" bill out to them.

Besides seeing the trick dog Peggy and hearing Delano Dell's songs, they also obtained much happiness from the pony ballet, which included Natalie Copeland, Flora Lewinger, Margie Geehan, Mildred Jacque, Charlotte Saks and Eddee Belmont.

Following the circus numbers the feature comedy movie, "It's the Old Army Game," starring W. C. Fields, formerly of the "Ziegfeld Follies," was shown to the youngsters. They did not miss one of the laughs with which the picture is crowded.

Flint cars, loaned through courtesy of General Manager Herbert L. Bailey and Manager William R. Fredericks of Boston Flint Company, were used to convey the entertainers and representatives of the theatre and this newspaper to and from the home.

SLAYER KILLED BY GARROTE

Santiago, Cuba, July 8 (A.P.).—Salvatore Aguilera was put to death by the garrote today for the murder of his aunt in March, 1924. It was the first execution in Cuba in twenty years.

Aguilera died eleven minutes after the garrote was applied. He broke down as the time for the execution approached, and it was necessary to administer restoratives before he could be placed in the chair and the brass collar adjusted about his neck.

Aguilera's execution is the twenty-first in the history of the Cuban Republic. The last previous one was on June 12, 1906, in Havana.

The garrote is a relic of the Spanish regime in Cuba. The brass collar about the neck effects strangulation, at the same time a sharp spike enters the back of the neck, breaking the spinal column.

the stand to enable them to make train connections.

The first was Arthur E. Corbin of Westport, Conn., a friend of the family, who started off his testimony with the statement that "Mrs. Budlong was a very charming hostess." He was examined by Chauncey Wheeler, counsel for Budlong.

Q.—Did you ever hear Mrs. Budlong say anything about Mr. Budlong's money? A.—Yes, she said that her husband should go fifty-fifty with her.

Q.—Did she ever speak to you with respect to her husband's wealth? A.—Yes. She said she did not know how much he had, and that she was very anxious to find out. She said that he ought to settle a large amount on her.

SHIRT THROWING.

Q.—What did Mr. Budlong say when she passed these remarks? A.—He was made very—mighty—uncomfortable. He would try and change the subject.

The witness was then asked about the shirt throwing episode in Budlong's apartment in New York city.

"Mr. Budlong told me about it and then I read it in the newspapers. Mrs. Budlong was so ashamed that he did not want anyone to see him. He went with us to the country. While there we had a hard time getting him to leave the house. When he thought that things had quieted down he went back to Newport. We thought that he was about to suffer a nervous breakdown."

Q.—How often did you hear Mrs. Budlong make remarks to her husband? A.—Well, we went to visit them about twice a month. I should say about once a month, or every other time we went there.

There was no hesitancy on the part of Mrs. Budlong in starting her cross-examination of the witness.

Q.—Did you hear Mr. Budlong make any disagreeable remarks concerning Mrs. Budlong? A.—That question may be answered in the affirmative, with qualification. I did hear him pass remarks only after he was aggravated by some remark that you made, Mrs. Budlong.

SKIPPER KILLED CRAFT DRIFTS

Left without a navigator on the high seas when her captain, Frank K. Perkins of Bluehill, Me., plunged to his death into the chain locker, the American schooner Cora F. Cressy, en route from Boston to Norfolk, Va., was found adrift off the Virginia coast.

The Coast Guard cutter Muscatine discovered the captainless vessel drifting helplessly and took her in tow. Captain Perkins suffered fatal injuries when he fell into the chain locker. The schooner was bound from Boston to Norfolk in ballast to load a cargo of coal.

MELLON FAVORS LOANS ABROAD

Washington, July 8 (A.P.)—Continued extension of loans to foreign borrowers by American bankers is regarded by Secretary Mellon as bound to react to the benefit of the United States.

The secretary noted today that most of the $433,000,000 loaned abroad during the first six months of this year, as announced by the Commerce Department, is going into productive enterprise.

As a result he believes Europe soon will be re-established economically and become one of America's best customers. He also sees some good in the increased imports from abroad, regarding it as a natural flow of trade which is best for the world.

Treasury officials expect to see the French franc stabilized as soon as that government completes its debt settlements with England and the United States and balances its budget.

U. S. NOTABLES WILL ATTEND BARBECUE

Rev. John F. Cummins Arranges Many Features for Roslindale Feast

By JAMES WALSH.

All roads will lead to Healy Playground, Roslindale, on Saturday, July 31, when thousands of people from all over Greater Boston and from other States will assemble for the annual barbecue of Sacred Heart parish, an event that has attracted countrywide attention because of the varied program provided by the Rev. John F. Cummins, the venerable pastor.

Father Cummins hopes to surpass this year anything in this line he has ever attempted. Several men of national fame will be present to address the great throng. A committee of several hundred parishioners, including Fathers Twomey and Cahill, are assisting Father Cummins in the work of preparing for the event.

The beloved pastor declares that none of the features that have made the barbecues so famous will be omitted and new features will be provided.

One feature of note will be the costume parade of the children of the parish. The fireworks are to be novel. The war veterans of the district have a military feature that promises to be interesting to military men as well as to the general public. A big list of children's events is being prepared.

The annual field day of Williams Court No. 19, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, will be held at World War Memorial Park, East Boston, on Saturday, July 24. An elaborate program, including modern and old-time dancing, doll carriage parade, band concert, track and field events, sawdust contest, and shoe race. A valuable award will be made to the holder of the lucky ticket. A Punch and Judy show will keep the younger children amused.

Prizes will be awarded to the oldest Forester, male and female; also to the youngest Forester, and to the largest family present.

Congressman John J. Douglass will be the orator of the day. Councillor Timothy F. Donavan, George E. Curran and many prominent in State and city and fraternal activities will be present. Michael J. Shannon is the chairman of the committee in charge.

The Confraternity of the Holy Cross will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. Devotions will consist of the Way of the Cross and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. The 8 o'clock mass tomorrow morning will be celebrated for the members of the confraternity.

PRAY TO AZTECS' GOD IN MEXICAN FLOOD AREAS

Mexico, July 8 (A.P.)—Floods in Mexico brought hundreds of Indians to the sacred shrine of Guadalupe, where they knelt in water waist deep to pray to the Ancient Rain God of the Aztecs and to the Christian God to preserve them from disaster.

Today the flood waters that threatened to isolate the capital and that caused tremendous damage in the Valley of Mexico, were subsiding.

U. S. PRINCESS SETS FASHION

Prince and Princess Orsini, the latter of whom was Mrs. Robert Trowan of Passadena, Cal., in the dress they wore during a visit to the Vatican. The princess was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Robert McAdoo, and they were the first women to have dresses made especially for the visit. They appeared in sombre hue and mid-Victorian style.

BIG FORD TUG IS FLOATED

St. John, N. B., July 8 (A.P.).—Henry Ford's big tug boat, the Ballenas, which went ashore on Seal Island, was being towed to Yarmouth today by the Canadian government steamer Dollard.

The Ballenas was floated by the Dollard last night. The tug ran off her course during a dense fog while on the way from the Great Lakes to New York city.

Eighteen members of the Ballenas' crew of twenty men launched a boat and reached Sable Island in safety after the accident, while the captain and another officer stuck by their boat until the Dollard arrived. The Dollard suffered slight damage to her stern while floating the other ship.

Body Recovered

Worcester, July 8.—The body of Francis O'Connell, 17, of No. 40 Mercer street, South Boston, who was drowned in Lake Quinsigamond Sunday night while swimming off the men's bathhouse, was found floating half-way across the lake.

DIVES TO DEATH IN NIAGARA

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 8 (A.P.).—The body of the man who leaped from the Erie Avenue Bridge into the hydraulic canal was recovered in the canal basin today.

The body is that of a man about sixty years old, five feet, eleven inches tall, weighing about 170 pounds and having gray hair. The fourth and fifth fingers of the left hand are contracted and the middle finger of the right hand is stiff. He wore a blue suit, a gray striped shirt with small black dots and high black shoes, size 8.

Laundry marks of "M. C. M." and "413" were on the man's linen. A postcard bearing the postmark of Concord, N. H., the writing on which was made ineligible by the water, was the only bit of paper found on the body.

AMERICANS SET DRESS STYLE FOR VATICAN

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Universal Service Correspondent

Paris, July 8.—It is no longer etiquette to wear "any old thing" just provided it is high necked and black when being admitted to a Papal audience.

The Princess Orsini, formerly Mrs. Robert Trowan of Pasadena, Cal., and her mother, Mrs. Robert McAdoo, are the first American women to have dresses especially designed for such an occasion by Worth, one of the oldest Paris fashion houses of international repute.

Princess Orsini's innovation is now an established precedent which from now on will be followed by all society women when visiting the Vatican.

It is completely of black satin without trimmings except for lace which covers the hair, suggesting a Spanish mantilla. The costume also features very long sleeves with lace cuffs, which partly cover the hands, and a high neck such as was worn in the late Victorian era.

The Princess Orsini, whose husband is the first gentleman of the chamber of the Pope, a high position which has been handed down from father to son for several generations in his family, also established the precedent of wearing pearls as the sole ornament when received in private audience by the Holy Father.

MYSTERY PHONE CALL CAUSES MAN'S SUICIDE

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—A mysterious telephone call is believed by the police to have prompted the suicide last night of Thomas E. Green, sixty years old, a foreign exchange broker, in his offices at 56 Wall street.

The janitor heard the telephone ring persistently. Knowing Green was in the office he went there and heard groans from behind the locked door. The police breaking in found Green senseless with his mouth burned by a corrosive poison. He died soon after. On his desk was a penciled note: "Please notify my wife."

GOULD ESTATE CUT OPPOSED

Lakewood, N. J., July 8 (Universal).—The estate of the late George J. Gould dwindled $1,662,385.66 during the past year, an order for counsel fees signed in Surrogate Court here today showed.

The order showed that in January, 1926, the estate consisted of a balance of $12,541,311.10, while in 1925 it was $14,203,696.76.

Judge John P. Kirkpatrick allowed $75,000 for counsel fees and $26,192.13 to accounts for expenditure.

Objection to the counsel fees was made by Auguste Roche, Jr., of the law firm of Harrison Roche, who argued that "in a short time there would be nothing left of the estate if the fees specified were constantly allowed."

BYRD PRAISES HUB AIRPORT

Predicting that Boston would become the greatest airport in the United States, Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, first to fly over the North Pole, responded to the warm tributes paid him at a dinner in his honor at the Hotel Kenmore. He prophesied also that Boston would win fame as one terminus of a non-stop flight across the Atlantic this Summer.

Following the dinner there was an automobile parade to Tremont Temple, where Lieutenant Commander Byrd gave a lecture.

At the dinner, attended by Mayor Nichols and other dignitaries, Congressman James A. Gallivan and Colonel William E. Horton both advocated a Congressional decoration for Byrd.

WALSH

Stylish feet CAN be comfortable

But not in ordinary shoes. Ordinary lasts are made with a saucer-like depression across the ball of the foot. This depression forces the toes into an unnatural position so that the joints press against each other. Tiny little blood vessels are pinched—nerves are tortured—and you show it in your face and in your carriage.

ARCH PRESERVER SHOES are made scientifically with a perfectly FLAT INNERSOLE that allows the feet to expand as nature intended with every step you take.

And this freedom from foot worry is accomplished without sacrificing charm, daintiness or style.

Even in beauty, ARCH PRESERVER SHOES actually rival shoes built with only style in mind.

Janesville, Wis., July 8 (Universal).—Sheriff Charles F. Burtis of Rock County was removed from office by Governor John J. Blaine. Burtis, who was elected as a "purist" candidate, was charged with drunkenness and immorality.

The order for the sheriff's removal said in part:

"Any plea he may have for clemency has been removed by the fact that he was elected as a 'purist' candidate and received the votes of the club women and the drys."

JUDGE BEWAILS NOTORITY

Chicago, July 8 (Universal).—Notoriety such as given to Joyce Hawley, because of her bath tub scene, never has done anyone any good. So declared Miss Hawley on her arrival here, to visit her parents.

"Everywhere I go, people say 'there's that Joyce Hawley—you know, the girl who took the bath at Earl Carroll's party'—and they point at me as if I were some kind of freak.

"You can tell all of the girls, for me, that notoriety of the sort that has come to me never has done anyone any good. It's bad and it hurts."

FARMER OF 71 IN SECRET WEDDING

A marriage return, filed in routine manner in Somerville City Hall today, revealed the marriage, on July 1, of a seventy-one-year-old Weston farmer and a Watertown woman just about half his age.

On the return was scrawled the notation, "Not to Be Published," but it was this notation itself that attracted the curious eye to a document that otherwise might have slipped into the files unscanned and with the romantic information it contained unheralded.

According to the marriage return, Andrew Gardner Coker, seventy-one, farmer, of Winter street, Weston, was married a week ago to Elizabeth Louise Lacker, thirty-seven, of No. 301 Arsenal street, Watertown.

The licenses were issued in Weston on June 30 and at Watertown on the same day and the ceremony was performed July 1 by the Rev. G. W. Jones of No. 275 Broadway, Somerville. He performed the ceremony in the vestry of the Broadway (Somerville) Methodist Episcopal Church.

That's the romance revealed by the plain little bit of paper, indistinguishable from a sheaf of its fellows except for a warning notation.

JAP PRINCE PLEADS FOR FRIENDSHIP WITH U. S.

Tokio, July 8 (A.P.)—A plea for closer understanding between Japan and the United States by a prince of the blood imperial, from whom public expressions are extremely rare, was made by Prince Asaka, who traveled in America a few months ago.

At a dinner of the America-Japan Society in his honor he expressed for himself and his consort, a sister of the Emperor, appreciation of the courtesies extended by President Coolidge and others.

"The people of Japan must seek every opportunity to know the people of the United States and similarly the American people should spare no effort to know us better," he said.

Gay Company Sails on S. S. DeGrasse for Holiday in Europe

NEWPORT SOCIAL LEADERS
Mrs. Waterbury Morris of New York (left) and Mrs. Charles L. Harding, Jr., of Boston. (I. N. R. photo).

CARRYING A GAY HOLIDAY company, the steamship DeGrasse sails away for Le Havre in France today with every cabin filled. Society is represented on the liner, also the arts, and as for the student world, it, apparently, is going a-traveling almost en masse.

MRS. LAURENCE W. MORGAN of Commonwealth avenue and Westfield is on the DeGrasse for a Summer abroad, taking with her little Miss Olivia. Daniel de Menocal goes to join his family, who sailed for foreign parts some time ago.

MADEIRA FOR a few weeks, then England and a voyage home in late August or early September, is the pleasant plan before Mrs. Harriet L. Proctor, who takes Miss Hester Fay, her niece, with her.

EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES on the DeGrasse include Professor Albert Bushnell Hart and his sister, Miss Janet Hart. John B. Page, of Phoenix, Ariz., a student at Harvard, is going abroad with Charles A. Parmalee of the Andover Academy staff.

PROFESSOR EDWARD R. RAND and Mrs. Rand of Cambridge are DeGrasse passengers. Likewise Brewster Davenport of the Hotel Puritan and Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Eaton of Marlboro street. The Eaton group also includes Miss Dorothea Newman and Harding C. Newman.

MUSICALLY, BOSTON'S high representation on the DeGrasse includes Agide Jacchia of Symphony fame, who goes to join Madame Jacchia. There are, too, a number of Symphony players off for annual vacations abroad.

JOHN NOBLE of Cambridge and the North Shore sails away in company with his daughter, Miss Eleanor Noble. John Noble, Jr., departed earlier in the season, traveling to Europe with the George L. Batchelders on their annual migration.

THE BATCHELDERS find much to interest them on the Dalmatian coast, where shipbuilding is the magnet for the elder Batchelder, while the young son, Samuel Batchelder, and John Noble make a perfect travel duo of contemporary ages and diversions.

THERE'S AN EXODUS of the Francis J. Oakes family Europeward, Mrs. Oakes and her daughters, Miss Elizabeth, Miss Virginia and Miss Mary Frances Oakes, having sailed a week or so ago.

WORLD TRAVELERS, the Oakes family, who sail the seven seas and visit famous ports the world around, in the intervals when school, debuts and college careers are not claiming the entire attention of the three charming daughters.

MERRY GROUPS are gathering about Eastern Yacht Club hospitable board for this evening's dinner dance (the first regular weekly event of the just commencing season). James M. Hunnewell entertains fourteen at his table.

PAUL FITZPATRICK and W. W. Weber join forces and are hosts for twenty guests, and J. B. Henderson gathers a party of ten. Meanwhile the cruisers are enjoying the delights of Blue Hill in Maine, where Dr. Seth Milliken is doing the honors for his clubmates.

THE SWIMMING POOL recently completed at "Oakwood" villa at Newport for Mr. and Mrs. Williams Burden, who was Annie Kountze, has gone into full operation for the warm season.

MISS JEAN COCHRAN, daughter of Mrs. Gifford Cochran, and Craig Biddle, Jr., are trying to inaugurate noon dancing at the Newport Casino, where the dulcet strains of Conrad's Orchestra is most too much for them to resist.

HEAVY LOSS IN TAXI FAILURE

Chicago, July 8 (A.P.)—A possible million dolar loss to stockholders, for the most part school teachers, small tradesmen and others of moderate income, was indicated today by investigators delving into the crash of the Premier Taxicab Company.

A creditors' petition made the basis for a bankruptcy order yesterday placed the company's liabilities at $1,500,000 and the assets at $1,000,000, but study of the firm's files led Receiver Samuel Howard to the opinion that little more than $500,000 could be salvaged from the business.

Even the meters of the upwards of 700 cabs listed as chief assets were found to be heavily mortgaged.

Federal agents have received a report from Dr. E. I. Sloan, a public health service official, that he saw 47 Premier cabs headed across the Indiana-Illinois line near here at dawn Sunday. Danville, Ill., residents also reported seeing 28 Premier cabs pass through there Monday, supposedly en route to Indiana. The mystery of this has not been solved.

One of the incidents of the receivership proceedings was a letter, purported to be signed by Ku Klux Klan officials indicating the organization was backing the company and urging members to buy stock. Chicago officials declared the letter to be a fabrication of commercial enemies.

HIDES MONEY, LOSES IT, FINDS RATS HAD TAKEN IT

New London, Ct., July 8.—Harry Netupsky, proprietor of a new Britain gasoline station, had a fear that he might be held up by highwaymen and relieved of his money. He eased his mind by hiding his money in the cellar. Missing the money, he notified the police, then, later found it under the cellar floor where it had been dragged by rats.

JOHN D. AT 87 IN 'DIME SHOWER'; STILLS PHONE

Tarrytown, July 8 (A.P.)—There are two anniversaries in the life of John D. Rockefeller which he celebrates—his birthday and the day he got his first job. The birthday is today. The other big day is in September.

In the village of Richford, N. Y., the modern Croesus was born. "Rich" was quite a contrary description of the financial resources of the Rockefeller family eighty-seven years ago today, but hard work and constant activity have been his creed during nearly a score of years more than the allotted span of three and ten.

His working days over, Mr. Rockefeller contrives to spend each birthday on the golf links; to his indulgence in the ancient game he attributes his continued good health and places his faith that a cherished ambition to live to be one hundred will be achieved.

The only variation to be noted today in Mr. Rockefeller's observance of this year's birthday are that the telephones on the great estate have been ordered silenced, and the reports that his generosity in the distribution of dimes is said by those who know him well to be unprecedented.

John D. once was pictured by cartoonists as a multi-millionaire who had to live on crackers and milk. As a matter of fact, visitors say, he eats what he likes and eats heartily anything that figures in the diet of a normal man much younger.

MAN HIT BY TRUCK HAS FRACTURED SKULL

Andrew J. Supple, 65, Boston Elevated machinist, is on the danger list at the City Hospital with a fractured skull suffered when he was struck at Fields Corner, Dorchester, by a truck driven by William F. McGrath of No. 108 Greaton road, West Roxbury. McGrath is being held by police of Station 11, Dorchester, for operating the truck without a license.

INDIAN GUIDE DIES IN CANADA AT AGE OF 102

Eastport, Me., July 8. — John Nicholas, Indian chief at St. Stephens, N. B., a noted guide and trapper, who died Friday following a fall from a cliff, was buried from St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church on the Passamaquoddy Indian reservation, within a few days of his 102nd birthday.

WOULD BAR DAUGHTER OF JOHN D. FROM 7 MILLION

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—Three organizations established by John D. Rockefeller oppose the payment to his daughter, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, of $7,500,000 as stock dividends on stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which was put in trust for her by her father in 1917. These are the Rockefeller Foundation, the Institute for Medical Research and the General Education Board.

The original trust consisted of shares which have been increased by new issues of stock paid as dividends. The trust company asks the court to rule what proportion of these stock dividends shall be considered capital and what proportion income.

Harold F. McCormick, divorced husband of Mr. Rockefeller's daughter, opposes the payment of the $7,500,000 to her, he and his children contending that the stock dividends should be added to the capital of the trust fund and not considered an income.

READING WANTS TO LEASE N. E. ROAD FOR 999 YEARS

Washington, July 8 (I.N.S.).—The Reading Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to acquire by lease the Lehigh & New England Railroad for a period of 999 years.

This would enable the Reading to open shorter routes for anthracite from the Schuylkill region to eastern and northern New York and New England, and additional through routes for traffic between New England and southern, western, southwestern and southeastern States. The road proposes to pay an annual cash rental of $1,069,000. The Lehigh & New England is 155 miles long and covers points in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

FURNITURE DESTROYED IN FITCHBURG FIRE

Fitchburg, July 8.—Fire today swept the Edwards furniture store on the second floor at Myrtle avenue and Main street. Joe Yee, proprietor of a laundry on the first floor of the building, and two of his employes were roused from sleep by Patrolman Langelier and fled to the street after hastily gathering their savings.

Firemen conquered the flames after a stubborn battle. The fire was gaining headway rapidly when Langelier discovered it. Damage to furniture stock is estimated at $2,500. Several establishments on the lower floor suffered water damage.

DRUG PARLEY SHUNS ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Philadelphia, July 8 (A.P.).—The world conference on narcotic education had before it today a resolution setting forth that the organization was interested only in curbing the sale and use of narcotics and not tobacco and alcoholic beverages. Presented by Dr. Walter W. Hubbard, New York, the resolution was referred to the committee on policy. Dr. Hubbard urged that the conference "remove all suspicion that we are closely affiliated with the Anti-Saloon League."

NEW ELEVATOR ORDERED FOR WHITE HOUSE

Executive Mansion Undergoes Renovation During Coolidge's Outing

Washington, July 8 (A.P.).—With the President and Mrs. Coolidge settled at the Summer White House in the Adirondacks, the executive mansion is prepared for an extensive overhauling.

Painters are busy on the exterior and the interior is receiving the attention of other workers.

Although the program omits for this year any alteration of the roof, declared by army engineers unsafe and in danger of collapse, other changes will be made including the replacing of the 25-year-old elevator by an up-to-date automatic lift, as well as refinishing for the east room and new paint for other chambers.

The President's office in the west wing will be left untouched, but the corridors and other rooms of that extension will be reconditioned.

ATTRACTIVE ENTRANT FOR BOSTON GIRL

Miss Frances M. Murphy, of Somerville, presents an alluring color scheme in smart costume of tweed mixed blue and grey. Her hat is of blue and her hose and shoes are of grey. A bag of grey completes the garb on which she bases her golden hopes of getting the silver laurel and $500 in gold as the Boston Girl of 1926. Only three more days of golden opportunity remain for Boston girls to use their finery to best advantage and obtain one of the cherished awards that are offered for smartly dressed misses of Greater Boston.

BOSTON GIRL CHOICE SOON

Three days more of golden opportunity to use your finery to best advantage.

The Boston Evening American's quest for The Boston Girl of 1926 concludes Saturday.

Realize that the smart frock you like so well on you may be the golden gown bringing to you the Silver Laurel and $500 in gold as that who best exemplifies the modish girl of personality and poise.

All that is necessary is to submit your photograph. Or come in and have one made, anytime during the day. It will be laid before four fashion and art authorities for consideration who will select The Boston Girl of 1926.

Miss Frances M. Murphy, of Somerville, bases her golden hopes on tweed mixed blue and gray. Her hat of blue and hose and shoes and bag of gray complete an alluring color scheme.

Have you not a golden gown, too, a modish frock, or street ensemble or party dress that marks you as a fashionable, up-to-date girl?

Besides the first, two additional awards will be made to girls chosen as second and third. They are miniatures of the Silver Laurel and $250 and $100 in gold respectively.

One of the three awards may be yours. But you have only until Saturday to qualify for consideration.

CASTORIA

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation
Flatulence
Wind Colic
Diarrhea
To Sweeten Stomach
Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Director Fitzmaurice Signs Up For 2 Years

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—There need no longer be any speculation on what George Fitzmaurice plans to do in the future. Associated First National settled that question in an announcement which brings Fitzmaurice into their camp for two years.

But before the George Fitzmaurice productions begin their operations for First National, Fitzmaurice will direct "Beauty and the Beast" for Samuel Goldwyn. He and Goldwyn have agreed to separate in an amicable arrangement which went into effect even before he was loaned to Rudolph Valentino for "The Son of a Sheik."

George Fitzmaurice

In breaking this interesting bit of news neither M. C. Levee or John McCormick, First National executives, could say what type of story Fitzmaurice would make for them as his first picture. That announcement we are promised will be made shortly. Right now Fitzmaurice is going over the scenario for "Beauty and the Beast," which goes into production as soon as Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky can be spared from "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

THERE seems to be as much discussion over Pola Negri's leading man and as frequent a change of mind as there was in the final selection of her next story and director. Yesterday at 5 o'clock, James Hall, who is now finishing his chores as Bebe Daniels' leading man was given to understand that he would have the honor of appearing with la belle Pola in "Hotel Imperial."

Pola Negri

After that news the world was Mr. Hall's oyster. He wouldn't have changed places with the Prince of Wales. Naturally there was a reason for all this jubilant outburst and if I do say it as I shouldn't, I haven't been a reporter all these years without being a good detective. My third degree methods divulged the news that if young Hall makes good in the movies, Margaret Breen will say yes, and the marriage will take place sometime soon.

Miss Breen was the star in the "Passing Show of 1923," and has been seen on Broadway in musical comedy roles since that time.

Hall, who is himself well-known on Broadway, wants to make a name in the movies—and out at Famous Players-Lasky they hold out great hope for him in this direction.

Now he is hoping there won't be another change in plans.

MARSHALL Neilan's decision not to go aboard this summer made a change in Matt Moore's plans. Matt who is nothing if not Irish, decided to visit the old country and at the same time play the lead in "Tis Only Blarney," for Mickey Neilan. Instead he is leaving for New York to play one of the leading roles in "Summer Bachelors," Warner Fabian's story, to be directed by Alan Dwan.

Virginia Valli who is still in Chicago having been called there by the sickness of her mother, will go on to New York to play the feminine lead.

U. S. COUPLES IN PARIS DIVORCES

Paris, July 7 (I.N.S.).—Petition for divorce has been filed by Mrs. William Ziegler of New York, formerly Gladys Virginia Watson. The Zieglers were married October 11, 1912, and have been prominent in New York Society.

Mrs. Leon Pruden, formerly Leone Fritscher, married in New York, August 5, 1910, was granted a divorce today for desertion.

Mrs. Marie Childs Draper was granted a divorce from Ernest Draper, whom she married in Brooklyn, February 3, 1911.

Mrs. Frank P. Furlong, formerly Lillian Graves, was granted a divorce. The Furlongs were married November 5, 1901, in Hartford, Ct.

John Thomas Jones was granted a divorce from the former Estei Conrad, whom he married in Ellicot City, Md., June 4, 1907.

CHARLES A. STOWERS WEDS SECOND TIME

New York, N. Y. July 8.—Charles A. Stowers, 62, formerly of Revere, Mass, who was divorced in Akron, Ohio, on Feb. 17, 1926, and Mrs. Anna H. Taronji, 53, widow, obtained a license here and were married at Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, by the Rev. H. Risner. The couple now reside at No. 606 River street, Hoboken, N. J. EJECTED WIFE RESORTS TO BRICK BARRAGE

Franklin, N. H., July 8.—Exploding the popular fallacy that a woman cannot throw straight, Mrs. Murray Call hurled bricks and stones through the windows of her home and bounced one off the top of her husband's head.

Not satisfied with crashing the windows and doors she then turned to the garage, where Call's automobile was put out of commission with a smashed windshield and punctured tires.

The woman's fury was aroused when she was ejected from her home after returning from a visit to her mother in Portsmouth.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of Soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore.

with handsome young gentlemen angels taking the place of the houris promised to Mohammedan warriors in the original Mohammedan paradise.

You will marvel that the man who wrote "The Spirit of Laws" could turn his thought to "The Persian Letters." Wonderfully adaptable are the French.

SALVATORE AGUILERA was garroted in Cuba this morning for beating to death his Aunt Caridad Suarez.

Death by the garrote sounds and is unpleasant. The condemned man sits against a post, around his neck is a brass collar with a screw adjusted to strike the backbone just below the brain. A half turn of the screw breaks the spinal column and death is said to be practically painless. It is probably less painful than our new fangled killing by electricity or lethal chamber.

HAD HUMAN beings devoted to helping and reforming each other half the ingenuity they have devoted to killing each other the world might be better off. But you can't be sure. Providence works mysteriously.

PUBLICITY AND advertising men, hang this up in large type. It is from Felix Shay's book on Elbert Hubbard.

Hubbard denied that he wrote, "Make a better mousetrap than your neighbor, and though you build your house in the woods the world will make a beaten path to your door." What Hubbard DID say was: "The world will never make a beaten path to your door unless you ADVERTISE. If you send automobiles to meet all the trains, and a free lunch on the front porch, so much the better."

MEXICO CITY is in danger of complete isolation by heavy floods. All railway tracks within ten miles of the capital are under water and famine is feared because of crop destruction throughout the Mexican plateau.

Many deeply religious, believe that floods and famine are sent to punish Mexico's drastic anti-religious legislation.

THAT MAY BE true, but this is CERTAIN. Religious warfare, its hatreds and bitternesses are far more dangerous than any flood.

It isn't our business to criticise our neighbors in Mexico. They may do as they please in their country. Conditions there emphasize the wisdom of those that established this country, giving absolute freedom to all religions, without interference or confiscation and without government recognition or subsidy for any religion.

ITALY'S KING next Monday will dedicate a monument at the Brenner Pass of the Tyrol, and D'Annunzio has written for the monument an eight-line poem warning foreigners to end forever their "presumptuous dreams of a march southward." That is a dream often realized, and often to be realized perhaps in the future.

Hannibal marched southward, coming around through Spain. Gauls, Goths, blue-eyed longbeards from the North of many kinds, came down over the Alps from the earliest times to the day of Napoleon.

THE IMPORTANT thing is that Rome and Italy always conquered their conquerors, assimilating them, making them Roman or Italian. You cannot keep Satan, or man, from "going to and fro on the earth, and walking up and down in it."

The power of nationality shows itself not so much in keeping people out as in absorbing and conquering them after they get in. The thing is to keep out the sort that you cannot absorb.

TARNISHED WINGS

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "GILDED KISSES" and "PIRATE OF HEARTS"

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

"Oh, Lord, please let him be at home. Let him answer the telephone. I've just got to talk to him tonight," moaned Merry.

READ THIS FIRST:

MERRY LOCKE, pretty and twenty and gay, falls in love with ANTHONY GAINES, a young lawyer.

Shortly after they meet, Tony wants her to elope with him. Merry confesses to him how fickle she has always been. So they decide to wait six months before they marry.

Merry's father dies suddenly and MOMS, her mother, is left with four daughters. The only one of them who is earning anything is CASSIE, who is stenographer to MORLEY KAUFMAN, a broker with whom she's in love. HELEN, the oldest sister, marries. JINNY, the youngest, stays at home to help Moms with the work

Merry finally take a position in a beauty shop. It pays only $10 a week, and Cassie points out to Merry that if Tony really loved her he wouldn't let her work, but would marry her at once. The first doubt of Tony and his sincerity creeps into Merry's mind.

That night she lets DERRICK JONES, a college youth who lives next door, make love to her, as he often did during the months before she met Tony Gaines. The following night Tony gives her his mother's old engagement ring, and Merry heartbrokenly confesses that in her jealousy and doubt she let Derrick kiss her.

Tony goes away. A week later Merry goes out with BILL ERSKINE, a friend of Morley Kaufman, who tells her that Tony is going away to Montana to live. One night a letter comes for her. Moms tells her it is on the hall table.

BUT the letter was not on the hall table.

"Moms!" Merry called at the top of her voice. "Isn't there any letter here for me?"

"Of course there is!" Moms called back in an annoyed tone. "Wasn't I just looking at it not ten minutes ago? It was right there on the table!"

She came into the hall untying her gingham apron.

"I'll find it for you," she said briskly. "You go out and eat your supper while it's nice and hot."

While she was clearing away the dishes Moms called to her.

"I can't imagine what's happened to that letter," she said, shaking her head in a puzzled sort of way. "I've looked high and low for it—and it's just nowhere to be seen! I can't imagine what's become of it."

She looked around the shabby hall with its faded carpet and cherry-colored woodwork as if it could tell her where the letter was.

Then she looked back at Merry. "It was a long white envelope with the name of some law firm in the Tremont building printed up in one corner of it," she began.

"The Tremont!" Merry cried breathlessly. "The Tremont building! Why, then it must have been from Tony! Oh, I've GOT to find it now!"

Once more she frantically shook out the worn pages of the telephone book. Once more she hunted all over the floor, lifting every one of the small rugs that covered the the old carpet.

Then she wheeled around suddenly, to the telephone and gave the number of Tony's house.

"I'll call him up and ask him what was in the letter," she said to Moms, one hand over the mouthpiece.

Moms shook her head and tightened her thin lips.

"I'd never call him up," she said grimly. "I'd never call any man. Wait until he calls you up! It never pays to chase men. They like to do all the chasing themselves."

Merry paid no attention to her. She wasn't listening to her. She was

GIRL, 16, IS TRADED FOR OLD HORSE

Vermont Young Woman, in Strange Deal, Sought in Murder Case

East Calais, Vt., July 8.—A girl, who as a sixteen-year-old child was bartered with her baby for an old horse, is being sought by authorities as an all-important link in the chain of climaxes about Fred Lipan, one of two brothers detained in connection with the slaying of Ivan R. Burnham at his farm near here.

Fred Lapan and his brother, Silas, are locked up in Washington county jail in Montpelier charged with the slaying of Burnham, a man they knew well.

The woman in question is said to be living with her husband and a boarder in the hill country. She has a two-year-old baby. The boarder swapped an old horse for her and the baby. The baby has since died, the young husband has left this section, and a few months ago she and the boarded who bought her separated. Her discovery is said by authorities to be of vital importance in the present case.

Burnham, dead and with marks of a terrible beating on his body, was found on his farm Sunday. The two Lapans, North Country traders, who it has developed, had had numerous swapping affairs with Burnham, were arrested. A $10 bill which one of the Lapans gave in a purchase is being examined for stains and fingerprints, as it was known Burnham, the day before he wah found slain, had been paid $10 by another person.

Evidence in the inquest is being taken by a "court on wheels," the attorney general and the judge driving into the mountain country and stopping at farmhouse after farmhouse to hear witnesses.

CAKEBEE TO AID TRIO IN DEATH CASE

Proceeds of Sale to Push Cause of Boys Convicted of Carbarn Slaying

Cooking cakes and other dainties to save three boys from the electric chair.

The cooking bee, the strangest ever staged in Greater Boston, was made possible today by a group of housewives in Allston and Brighton, who volunteered to furnish refreshments for the monster whist party to take place tonight in aid of the drive to commute the sentence of Heinlein, McLaughlin and Devereaux, condemned to die for the Waltham carbarn murder.

The proceeds of the party at clemency committee headquarters, No. 336 [illegible] street, Brighton, will be added to the fund which is at present [illegible] to meet the plans of the committee.

URGED TO ATTEND

Sympathizers who think that the sentences should be changed to life imprisonment are urged to attend tonight's [illegible] in order [illegible] the presence and patronage to give impetus to the clemency campaign.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Margaret Shea, assigned by Mrs. Henry McGuinness, general chairman, as [illegible] chairman of the whist party committee arrangements promise a financial success.

Mrs. Shea was busy today receiving prizes and cakes of all sorts as donations. She and Mrs. McGuinness were greatly cheered by the cooperation of the woman workers as were the parents and relatives of the doomed youths.

Petitions filled to the last line with indorsements a hourly pouring in from all corners of the State. Additional appeals to all women's clubs have been sent out.

With the entry of the law firm of Juggins, Fielding and Ellsworth of No. 53 State street, the fight for clemency assumed new proportions today.

By GEORGE M. COHAN

CHAPTER XXVI

"I WANT you to do a favor for me, Georgie," said George Tyler, the genial theatrical manager, during the Spring of 1918.

"I'm promoting an all-star tour for the benefit of the American Red Cross Society," he continued. "It's two weeks' hard work, but it's for a worthy cause."

Cites W. L. Douglas Policy as a Convincing Proof of His Assertions

Kenyon of the Kenyon Company, national advertising agency, in an address to retailers at the New England Shoe and Leather Exposition and Style Show at Mechanics Building.

NEW COACH FOR WESTERN ROAD

The Chicago & North Western Railway has just purchased, for use on some of its branch lines three gas-electric cars. These cars are the latest development in this type of equipment and will be the largest in service on any railroad. The total length of each car is seventy feet six inches and the weight in running condition approximately [illegible] pounds or forty five tons, as compared with sixty tons, the weight of the electric freight locomotive recently placed in service by the Chicago & North Western in its switching service along the Chicago River.

The car is divided into five compartments. The first compartment contains the generating machinery and controls, and the second is fitted up as a railway mail post office. Following these in the order given is the baggage room, a smoking compartment with seats for [illegible] passengers and the main compartment seating twenty seven.

These cars are the product of the [illegible] Company of Cleveland, and all the electrical equipment is supplied by the General Electric Company, and conforms to all I. C. C. and A. R. A. standards. The interior is of mahogany finish. The seats in the main passenger compartment are upholstered in plush and those in the smoking compartment with leatherette to conform to Chicago and Northwestern requirements.

The outside is painted standard Chicago and Northwestern yellow with olive green trimmings. These cars will be placed into operation at once, one between Milwaukee and Adams, Wis., a second between Clinton and Anamosa, Ia., and the third between Kenosha, Wis., and Harvard, Ill. The crew will consist of an engineer, conductor and baggageman.

NEW ORIENTAL TRAIN LUXURY

The anniversary of the New Oriental Limited marks not only the end of a year of unsurpassed service, but the beginning of another period of increasing admiration on the part of the traveling public for this all-steel train.

Designated as one of the finest trains out of the Pacific North-west [illegible] equipment and de luxe service of the Oriental Limited are a constant source of delighted spoken and written comment from thousands of transcontinental travelers.

The many unusual features of this splendid train, combined with the fact that its route is through some of the finest mountain scenery in all America, past the rugged grandeur of Glacier Park and through the mighty Cascades of Washington, have made the New Oriental Limited an extremely popular transcontinental train.

Its patrons can hardly realize the pain-taking care expended in maintaining the high degree of efficiency and comfort which has always been the standard of this most modern train.

Periodically, the entire equipment is returned to the Pullman shops to be completely renovated and redecorated. Various improvements evolved by the Pullman designers are made at such times in order that the train may be absolutely modern in every detail and fully deserving of the title, "The New Oriental Limited."

The comforts of everyone have been considered—men, women and children. For the men, a lounge and smoking roo mwith high, plate glass windows, permitting an unobstructed view on both sides of the train, and sofas accommodating twelve persons, produces all the comforts of an exclusive club. On this train, no man need feel the discomfort of being untidy, with a shower bath for cleanliness and a barber and valet for personal attentions.

The exclusive lounge room for women, is a new departure. Comfortably and daintily furnished, containing a mirrored toilet table and with a shower bath adjoining, attended by a maid who is a competent manicurist and hair-dresser, this lounge has proved a boon to thousands of feminine traveleds. For the children, the attendant in the women's lounge serves as an excellent nursemaid, permitting their mothers occasional moments for relaxation so essential on transcontinental trips.

The New Oriental Limited is indeed a modern hotel with the added advantage that the guests sitting at its high plate glass windows do not have their view confined to a single vista but instead, as this train hotel moves smoothly along over a well-balasted roadway, a constantly changing panorama of America's most magnificent scenery is presented and, owing to the perfect comfort of the spectators, fully enjoyed.

Kearns Reveals the Real Jack Dempsey

Jack Kearns

"Ishall reveal the real Jack Dempsey!"

Jak Kearns, former manager of the world's heavyweight champon, has made good the promise he gave as he started to write a serie of articles on Dempsey, the first of which will be published exclusuvely in next Monday's Boston Evening American.

Kerns goes behind the heavyweight scenes and gives unpublished facts about Dempsey. He tells the truth about all of the title holder's battles, how Dempsey felt, the amount of the purses, Dempsey's ambition to become a moving picture sheik, and of his meeting with kings and queens in Europe.

Kearns no longer speaks as Dempsey's manager. He is a private citizen as far as the champion is concerned, and does not spare anybody in his desire to give the fans the story of the real Dempsey.

Helen Wills to Start Play at Longwood on July 19

It was announced today by Irving C. Wright, chairman of the Longwood tennis committee, that Helen Wills, the national lawn tennis titleholder for the past three years, will start active training on the grass courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill, on July 19.

Miss Wills, with Miss Mary K. Browne, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Mrs. Molla Mallory sailed for home today from Southampton, England. It is understood that Miss Wills's fellow Californians, Mary Browne and Elizabeth Ryan, will also practice at Longwood.

The Womens' Singles tournament originally planned has been cancelled, and the practice period for the Californian players will conclude with the men's singles for the Longwood bowl, which is the first official tryout for the American Davis Cup players.

According to Mr. Wright, it is expected that Miss Wills will give exhibition matches during her stay here. Her play will be closely watched as an indicator of her form in the National Title tourney to be held in New York August 16.

Miss Wills has played no tennis since June 4, when she underwent an operation for appendicitis at Paris. She made a remarkably quick recovery, according to physicians, and was able to leave the hospital on June 12, but refrained from competition.

PREXY DENIES N. E. LEAGUE NEAR RUIN

By BIRNEY P. LYNCH,
Sports Editor, Boston Evening American

Widely circulated reports that the New England League was tottering on its financial underpinning today were indignantly and emphatically denied by Claude B. Davidson, president of the circuit.

"Enemies of the New England League have been busily engaged in wielding the hammer for several weeks," said Davidson. "They point to slender attendance in Lawrence and Lewiston as barometers of the financial affairs of the league as a whole. But the league is operating on a sound basis.

"The attendance in Lynn, Manchester and Haverhill, where the fight is hottest, has exceeded expectations. Salem, Nashua and Portland have responded splendidly. Only in Lawrence and Lewiston has the attendance fallen short of pre-season hopes, but even these two clubs are far from being ready to quit.

"Any league in organized baseball which can survive the rigors of a Spring like that of 1926 and pass the Independence Day mark is able to go through with the season. The owners of every club in the league have forfeits of $1,000 posted to finish the season. They cannot afford to lose this money. Anyway, this talk of the league tottering is pure bunk emanating from persons who do not know what they are talking about."

Davidson declined to make public any figures on attendance. He said he was not in possession of the official reports.

LA BARBA KEEPS CROWN BY WIN FROM RIVERS

Los Angeles, July 8 (I.N.S.).—The flyweight crown sat jauntily on Fidel La Barba's head today as a result of his decisive defeat last night of Georgie Rivers.

It was La Barba's first defense of the title since he won it eleven months ago from Frankie Genaro, and he defended it just as conclusively as he won it. And at that, it was a real scrap for all of the ten rounds.

Rivers brought the fans to their feet in the first round when he sent La Barba down on one knee with a right cross to the jaw. The champion came up smiling, however, and retaliated by scoring knockdowns in the third and ninth rounds. Rivers took a short count on each occasion but came up full of fight.

The challenger attempted to stage a comeback in the eighth. He went for the champion with all he had, but La Barba, although outpunched in this round, took all of the others, the ringside critics agreed. This effort "shot" Rivers and in the tenth he was practically all in.

Mandell Signs Kane

Rockford, Ill., July 8 (A.P.).—Eddie Kane, manager of Sammy Mandell, new lightweight champion since he entered the game six years ago, will be on the job for at least five more seasons. Kane, a guest at Mandell's wedding yesterday, signed a new contract guaranteeing him 60 per cent. of the boxer's earnings.

GRID OFFICIALS FOR BIG GAMES

Philadelphia, July 8.—Edward and Thomas Thorp, Columbia University athletic stars of more than a decade ago, will officiate in four of the important football games to be played by the University of Pennsylvania this Fall. The list of officials for all games was announced by Ernest B. Cozens, graduate manager of athletics.

The first named will referee the Swarthmore and Chicago games on Franklin Field, while Tom will officiate in the same capacity in the Illinois game at Urbana and in the Cornell game on Franklin Field. Walter Eckersall of Chicago will umpire the Pennsylvania-Chicago contest.

The complete list of officials follows:

Advance Wins E. Y. C. Race After Thrilling Contest

Bar Harbor, Me., July 8.—Vice-Commodore John S. Lawrence sailed his An[illegible] and N[illegible] schooner yacht Advance across the finish line first in the Eastern Yacht Club's long distance race across the Gulf of Maine from Marblehead for the Norman Cup.

The Advance shot into the lead while the rest of the fleet was taking it easy [illegible] Duck Island. At dark, most of the 28 starters except the big schooners, were miles from port.

The contest was anybody's race during a light [illegible] through the [illegible] yesterday [illegible] wester was blowing. [illegible] led at Thatchers with the [illegible] Cloud and Wildfire right behind. The Resolute and Advance then slipped out ahead and at dawn were miles in the lead.

AAfter passing Mantinicus the Resolute drew away from the Advance.

The Vanitie and Resolute [illegible] on all sail and the former worked past the Clark yacht but never threatened the Lawrence boat.

It is expected that the balance of the fleet would reach here in time to resume the cruise with a run around Mount Desert Island and up into Blue Hill bay, a Maine inlet. Dr. Seth M. Milliken, the fleet surgeon, will be the host for the fleet's visit to his Summer residence.

Atlantan Favored at 4 to 1 Odds

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

Columbus, O., July 8.—Bobby Jones, greatest figure in golf today as a result of winning the British open golf championship two weeks ago, was the centre of interest this morning when more than 5,000 waited at the first tee to see the Atlanta star start in the initial 18-hole round at the Scioto Country Club today.

Bobby was a 4 to 1 favorite at an early hour this morning when the betting was opened and Walter Hagen of New York was next with odds of 6 to 1.

Yesterday, in the practice rounds, Tommy Armour, who has been knocking on the door of the open championship for the last three years, made a determined bid when he shot an eighteen-hole round of 68 to tie the course record set several years ago by George Sargent, the home pro. At his heels came the duels of Tommy [illegible] Espinosa of the [illegible] Golf Club, Chicago, and Harry Hampton of Men[illegible] who had counts of 71 for the preliminary sessions.

The first pair to get away from the first tee this morning was Harry Hos[illegible] of Cleveland and George Heron of West Bury, N. Y. The last man to get away in the first flight was John Junor of Portland, Oregon, who was paired at the last minute with John Reuter, Jr., of Chicago.

ROUGH CAUSES GRIEF

THERE was only one handicap to be surmounted by the field of 153 players when the tournament started. This was the tall rough which caused so much grief in the preliminary rounds. Although this rough is high and dense, it carries a penalty just the same and the golfer who plays safe and sacrifices distance for safety is the man who will be fighting in the running when 72 holes of championship play is ended.

Eighteen holes were on the program today in the initial round and eighteen holes will be played tomorrow. On Saturday the players having the first sixty low scores will continue the quest for the "Golfers' Grail" at thirty-six holes, and the player having the lowest score for the 72 hole journey will be declared the winner of the crown now held by Willie MacFarlane of New York.

WATROUS AMONG FAVORITES.

B[illegible] Al Watrous, who finished second in the British open, Mac Smith, who almost won the British open last year and who is the present Western open champion, Bobby Cruickshank, who tied with Jones in 1923, and Jim Barnes, who was British open champion in 19[illegible] will be among those present.

Other favorites were Al Espinosa, Bob MacDonald, Johnny Farrell, Harry Hampton, Laurie Ayton, Francis Gallett and Gene Sarazen. The latter has been playing perfect golf since he started practicing for the open and he has stated that he is prepared to repeat the success he met with in 1922 at the Skokie Country Club in Chicago, when he won the open in a close race with Bobby Jones and John Black of Wichita, who tied for second place.

Malden Tossers Out of Twi Flag Race

By EDDIE DONDERO

Malden's excursion toward Twilight League baseball supremacy has been halted by Dorchester, thereby eliminating them as pennant aspirants. After blazing the trail for seven weeks, Frank [illegible] can forget right in their own [illegible]

The championship has but Dorchester and Lynn as contenders since Malden dropped by the wayside with a crippled pitching staff. Joe Kendrick's noble [illegible] opposes South Boston tonight at the Christopher Lee playgrounds.

According to a [illegible] of President Moone[illegible] of the Boston Twilight League, [illegible] Murphy of the South Boston team will be allowed to take his place in the Southie line up against Dorchester this evening at South Boston.

President Mooney's statement is as follows:

"In [illegible] of the [illegible] bearing on the suspension of [illegible] fielder Murphy of South Boston, I have come to the conclusion that in justice and fairness to the Lynn team, [illegible] party to this [illegible] [illegible] the Dorchester team [illegible] fighting [illegible] place would play against the same strength that Lynn faces at South Boston on Tuesday evening.

"The umpire's report on the Murphy incident was [illegible] hands soon enough to prevent Murphy playing against Lynn. Lynn followers would have a just cause to feel that Dorchester would be benefited with Murphy out of the lineup [illegible] intention to have [illegible] allowed to play this one game against Dorchester.

"McGaffey of the Lynn team has also been suspended for an indefinite period. He was found guilty of [illegible] on the umpire in the Lynn-South Boston game.

"The Boston Twilight League will tolerate nothing but good sportsmanship. Quick-tempered players will be given plenty of opportunity to consider their actions while under suspension.

"From this date on, any player who assaults an umpire shall be suspended for the remainder of the season."

33 YACHTS COMPETE IN CORINTHIAN REGATTA

The third mid-week race of the Corinthian Yacht Club attracted [illegible] starters. The boats contested in light and very shifty airs, and the juniors had some exciting racing.

Elmer A. Onthank, Jr., brought the Barracuda II home well ahead of the other "O" boats.

The starting battery at the Polo Grounds was Iron Man Joe McGinnity and Frank Bowerman. If you don't believe that was a great battery, ask dad. He knows. The veterans of the great baseball campaigns of olden days gray, shattered but still hale and hearty, came back to the diamond to help build a memorial to the greatest of the vanished stars, Christy Mathewson.

PROUT REFUSES TO TAKE FULL BLAME FOR HOFF BAN

Hoff's Ban Result of Committee Act, Prout Declares

William C. Prout, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of America, upon whom has fallen the brunt of the Hoff-A. A. controversy, stated today that he alone was not responsibile for the ban placed upon the Norwegian pole vaulter, nor can he alone rescind the edict which placed Charley Hoff beyond the A. A. U. pale.

The committee on foreign relations as a whole is the responsible body, he said. Hoff's permit was revoked by the committee and the committee alone has the power to lift it Prout added The members, in addition to Prout are:

Joseph B. McCabe of East Boston.

Frederick W. Rubien of New York, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U.

Charles A. Dean of Chicago.

Robert S. Wheeler of Los Angeles.

Charles Hoff, the world's champion pole-vaulter and one of the finest [illegible] world as well, came to America last Fall and was permitted to compete under the auspices of the A. A. U. Recently this permit was revoked by that organization, and the visitor was virtually requested [illegible] home.

A storm of protest [illegible] out the [illegible] and friends of Hoff [illegible] understand what was [illegible] that the ban placed upon the Norse star was both unfair and [illegible] a visiting athlete.

CHAIRMAN BEARS BRUNT

The burden of the attack fell upon Prout who as chairman of the foreign relations committee was held responsible [illegible] A. A. U. [illegible] Prout declined [illegible] the alleged [illegible] professionalism [illegible]

Hoff personally has [illegible] showdown which he says has been refused him by the A. A. U. The A. A. U. contends that an organization like an [illegible] playing host to a guest, is not bound to make a public complaint if the guest's actions meet with the host's disapproval.

The situation stood at a [illegible] mate for some time until Mr. Prout's recent unbending to the extent of explaining the attitude of the A. A. U. to Hoff. The explanation did not in concrete terms state anything definite against Hoff.

A. A. U. TURNS DEAF EAR.

Prout maintains that Hoff knows why he is in disfavor because [illegible] bers of the A. A. U. have told him. Further than indicating the tenor of the A. A. U.'s opinion by such phrases as "unsportsmanlike conduct" and saying that [illegible] while in this country [illegible] the organization trouble, Prout is noncommittal.

A large amount of [illegible] the press [illegible] by alleged professionalism on Hoff's part, including the reception of large sums of money and valuable trophies for his performances at various track meets [illegible] the pole vault record.

The A. A. U., according to Prout, does not believe these stories. "As far as we are concerned, [illegible] Hoff's amateur standing is O. K. everywhere."

This fact, that the A. A. U. didn't accuse Hoff of professionalism [illegible] wonder just what [illegible] arouse its [illegible] and the refusal of the organization to [illegible] didn't help the public state of mind. [illegible] wave of sympathy which has swept through the towers of sport [illegible] from coast to coast.

GUEST OF MILLROSE A. C.

Hoff came to America last November at the invitation of the Millrose Athletic Club of New York City. The invitation was extended him because he was regarded as one of the world's foremost athletes and [illegible] greatest in foreign athletic talent, and invitations were also extended to Hubert Houben of Germany, Adrian [illegible] of Holland, and George Goodwin of England. Hoff accepted, and out of courtesy to the affiliated Norwegian organization the A. A. U. [illegible] under [illegible]

Al Mello to Meet Zivic in Return Bout

AL MELLO, dethroned New England welterweight champion today was matched to battle Jack Zivic [illegible] in a return [illegible] bout at a Suffolk A. A. show at Braves Field on July [illegible]

It was announced before Mello lost his title to George (Kid) Lee that the victor of the New England title quarrel would get the tussle with Zivic. Most of the experts at the ringside figured Mello won over Lee which is why the Lowell welterweight was today awarded the chance [illegible] with Zivic.

Jack Conway

When Mello and Zivic met recently at the Wigwam the Lowell favorite was awarded the decision after a sensational engagement.

Mello and Lee probably will clash in August in another contest for the New England welterweight title. When he signed for the Braves Field show, Lee agreed to take on Mello in a return match within sixty days in the event he won the championship.

A crowd of 5,200 fans paid $8,000 to see Mello and Lee battle.

The changing of the championship was one of the biggest boxing upsets of the year. Mello entered the ring a 10 to 3 favorite and was generally expected to come through with an easy victory. This writer was one of the few who gave Lee a chance of winning the title.

THE preliminaries, like the feature bout, were crammed with action. Bobby Brown of Lowell won over Gene Mars of Milford in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Phinney Boyle of Lowell, after being knocked down for counts of seven and four in the first round, came back and knocked out Ray Cross of Milford in three frames.

Nick Madonna of Lexington was awarded the verdict over [illegible] in one of the season [illegible] eight [illegible]

BUDGET IS BIG AID TO NEWLYWEDS

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

Budget Talk No. 95

By MARTHA LEE

"JUST what is a budget?" writes a newlywed from near the Canadian border. Her question is echoed by many nearer the Hub.

A Budget [illegible], a [illegible] spending [illegible] serves as a [illegible] a [illegible] income [illegible] question of what proportion of a family income [illegible] shelter, food, clothing, operating, savings and personal expenses. These percentages form what we call the Standard Budget.

While a Standard Budget gives you a pattern by which you can cut your own Budget so as to derive more satisfaction and pleasure out of your income.

All Budgets are subject to change from time to time as the family condition change, but if you have a definite [illegible] these changes can be made more intelligently.

Today I want to talk a bit about a Standard Budget for Newlyweds.

These budgets are [illegible] suggested and you will see that as income increases, the proportion spent for Food decreases while that allowed for Personal increases.

STANDARD BUDGET FOR NEWLYWEDS

MONTHLY INCOME	$125	$150	$200
Savings	20	28	40

Food	40	40	45
Shelter	60	75	80
Clothing	30	40	45
Operating	25	30	40

Write or Print Very Plainly

By following the budget plan each weekly salary check must do its share in accumulating a fund toward the big seasonal expenses such as coal, insurance or maybe a doctor's bill.

Maybe just at first you will miss the extra cash you usually kept in your pocketbook. Far better, however, to have it safely in the bank [illegible] even though it may stay there but for two or three weeks.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A widow with four in the family—a son of 18 earning $100 a month, a daughter, 16, and a baby, 3, wishes a budget. Her monthly expenses are $25 for rent, milk $10.80, fruit and vegetables $10, coal $6, clothing $6, laundry $3, insurance $6 and gas and electricity $2.85, making $71.40 in all.

Her monthly expenses of butter, cheese, eggs and butter substitute are $8. For cereal and flour she pays 80 cents a month, meat $3 and [illegible] $8. [illegible] dues are $1.50 and school lunch $2, making $28.60, which added to $71.40 amounts to the total income of $100.

Vacation club in June covers the coal bill and a Christmas club pays for clothes. Has a daughter anxious to go to Normal school, but doesn't know how she can manage it.

I think it is under food that you [illegible] economize a little. Uncle Sam tells us that of each dollar spent for food 20 cents or less should go for meat, eggs and fish; for milk 20 cents or more, for cereals and bread 20 cents or more, for vegetables and fruit 20 cents more or less; for fat, sugar and the other groceries 20 cents or less.

Now you are spending only 80 cents a month for cereals and flour (bread), but $8 a month for butter, cheese, eggs and butter substitute. I am sure that if you will increase your allotments of cereals and bread to equal what you are spending for meat, eggs and fish and also to equal the third group (fats, sugar and other groceries), you will be able to save something on your food bills.

I am sending you some recipe books showing appetizing uses of cereals. The value of dried fruits must not be overlooked either. A standard budget for $23 (which is really your weekly income) gives you shelter $4.40, clothing $2.30, operating $2.30, savings $1.20, personal $2.20 and food $9.50.

Mrs. R. E. V. has $200 a month for a family of six, including children, 6, 8, 10 and 11. Rent is $50—a bit high but necessary in order that the children may grow up in good environment. Rents are high in this section.

The standard budget for a family of five with an income of $200 would give you: Savings, $25; food, $50; shelter, $50, including business carfares; clothing, $32; operating, $18, and personal, $25. You will have to pare these allotments a little to make up some extra money under shelter.

Mrs. R. W. is always behind in finances. Her husband makes $30 a week. Five in family, including boy of 11, another 6 and 5½ months baby. Pays $7 weekly rent, $1 weekly for gas and light, $1 for furniture, $1 on music lessons, $1 for dry goods man, $1 dancing lesson, milk $3, insurance $2.70, co-operative bank $1.50, evening course for husband $5. Groceries amount to $15 for two weeks. Has nothing for clothes, doctors and dentist's bill, etc. Is two weeks behind with everything now.

Let's forget that last statement for a minute until we look at a standard budget for $30 for five in family. This would allow you $3 for savings, $6.50 for shelter, including business carfares, $12 for food $2 for clothing, $4 for operating and $2.50 for peronal.

Yours is a case where your outgo exceeds income. Your rent is high for your income, and while this is often unavoidable, it must be balanced by economizing in other directions.

However, out of your personal allotment must come the furniture payments, the music and dancing lessons, as well as the doctor's and dentist's bills.

Here you are over the personal allotment again, you see. The money for the dry goods man will come out of clothing. The best I can do is to show you about what your expenses should be. I am afraid it remains with you to pare afraid down to scale.

Are you building according to a well-laid financial plan? Don't let good intentions and procrastination keep Budget away.

"From Boston to Broadway"

that long-waited-for vacation in some way, some time or other.

I sat down and gave myself a good talking to.

"You've been going pretty strong, young fellow, for over thirty years, without relaxing at all. You'll fall in a heap the first thing you know. The whole thing isn't worth the worry." While laying down the law to myself along these lines, I opened a package that had just arrived by mail.

It contained an autographed photograph of President Wilson: "To George M. Cohan from Woodrow Wilson," it was inscribed.

"What's this all about?" I wondered.

An inclosed note fell to the floor. It read:

Dear George Cohan: The President considers your war song, "Over There," a genuine inspiration to all American manhood.

The note was signed by the President's secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty.

I started thinking again, but along different lines.

"The whole thing isn't worth the worry, eh?" I looked at the President's signature again. "You were going to quit, were you?" I read the note over the second time. "We'll see about that."

I went at it again. The vacation stuff just wasn't in the cards.

I received a hurried call for help from Robert Hilliard and hopped on a train for Philadelphia to offer an opinion on a play called "A Prince There Was." Hilliard had produced the piece and was appearing in the leading role.

"Close it up, Bob," I advised, after watching the entire performance.

"Couldn't you take the title and write a play around it?" he inquired.

"'Bob,' I told him, 'just to show you that I'll go through for a pal, I'll write a new version of this thing under a regulation author's contract.'"

He couldn't begin to thank me enough.

I went to work on "A Prince There Was." I kept the same set of characters and stuck to the title, but outside of that there was nothing of the original play left when we went into rehearsals ten days later.

The play opened in Stamford, Ct., for one night, and then went straight to Broadway and into the George M. Cohan Theatre. The critics all agreed that the play was bad. Friday night of the opening week Hilliard and I had a talk. It started as an argument, but ended in a friendly chat.

"I don't like the part," he said.

"I think it's a great part,' I suggested.

"The play's all wrong."

"The play's all right Bob."

"Why don't you play it yourself?" he suggested.

"All right, I will." I wrote him out a check for $25,000, gave him a share in the future profits, a small percentage of the gross receipts, and hopped in the following afternoon (Saturday matinee) after a twenty-minute rehearsal with the company. The piece remained at the Cohan Theatre for the balance of the season and proved a genuine box office success.

Toward the end of March I slipped Grant Mitchell into the part and quietly stepped out of the cast. We organized a second company of the same piece, which toured the country while the "number one" show played the principal cities. It was during the New York run of "A Prince There Was" that Isidore Witmark, the music publisher, brought me the manuscript of "Cherry Blossoms," a three-act operetta.

"Here's a great little musical play,' he said. "I wish you'd look it over."

We chatted about the old days, and I agreed to read the operetta. Later we came to an agreement.

"Here's where I get even," I thought to myself.

I revamped the score, interpolated a half dozen new numbers, rewrote the book, twisted the story upside down, poked fun at the whole idea, turned the operetta into a jazzy musical show, renamed it "The Royal Vagabond," and produced it at the Cohan and Harris Theatre. It was a smashing success and everybody was satisfied. It took me twenty-five years to get even with the Witmarks, and that's the way I did it.

"Nothing to do till September," I could hardly believe it was true.

"Here's a chance for a real vacation at last," I whispered to myself. I got on the phone and rang up Steve Reardon at the Friars Club.

Steve and I had been pals for years. We still are, for that matter.

Reardon is a "cop," or rather he was a "cop" for over twenty years. He was a wonderful "cop," too. As any "cop." He's been retired for a long time now, and is a gentleman of leisure in the truest sense of the word. He has a brain, loves books, and possesses a bank roll.

Reardon hasn't worked in years and solemnly swears that he never will again. Can you imagine a man who not only absolutely refuses to work, but goes about advocating the idea, hanging around with me? Well, it's a fact. Reardon and I string it out together. We get many a laugh, too. He always refers to me as "The Slave," while my pet name for him is "Hobo."

"How about a little motor trip to Chicago?" I asked him over the 'phone. "I'm taking a vacation."

This handed him a laugh.

"I'm on the level," I went on. "Got the car waiting in front of the door now."

"I'll be right over," he shouted, and ten minutes later we were climbing into the automobile.

"Before we start I'd like to take a spin as far as Providence and see the old home town,' I suggested.

"Anywhere you like, kid," he chuckled. "Go through to 'Frisco if you want to. I'm with you."

"What?"

"Go through to 'Frisco from Providence."

"Say, are you kidding me?" He weighed me up.

"No, I'm dead serious," I assured him. We shook hands; the thing was settled. After the Providence trip we were to start for the Coast.

"See you boys next September," he shouted to a group of Friars in front of the club, and away we went for a "rare old time," as we put it.

Martha Lee's Reliable Pointers and Recipes

GREETINGS, Everybody!

Not a line to devote to anything today but the recipes for delicious eats that have recently come in for our Exchange Column.

Even though it's hot, we do have to eat to live. Haven't you a pet thirst-quencher or other hot weather specialty to share with your fellow-readers and club members?

There are some Class A recipes in today's collection. First—for the picnic basket—delicious filled oatmeal squares from Mrs. [illegible] Scott, [illegible] avenue, E. Wey[illegible].

FILLED OATMEAL SQUARES.

1¾ cups of raw oatmeal
1½ cups of flour
1 cup of brown sugar
½ cup of shortening (butter preferred)

Mix with hands, spread in shallow pan pressing down firmly. Keep ½ cup of mixture for top. Spread filling on part pressed in pan then sprinkle with remaining mixture. Pat lightly with knife. Bake in moderate oven fifteen to twenty minutes.

Note—No liquid is added to this mixture.

FILLING.

1 cup of chopped raisins or dates (chopped nuts may be added)
½ cup of sugar
1 tablespoon of flour
1 cup of water

Boil until mixture drops from spoon, cool a little before spreading as directed, on the cookies. When partly cooled, cut the cookies in 2-inch squares with sharp knife.

Next, from Mrs. Elizabeth M. [illegible], No. 1165 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, Mass., comes an unusual dressing for spinach.

DRESSING FOR SPINACH.

First put butter in the frying pan. Next put in 2 cups of bread crumbs. Add pepper and salt. Keep shaking the pan until they are brown and put on top of spinach. This is delicious.

Mrs. G. N. Merritt, No. 20 Dexter road, Newtonville, contributes an extremely good rhubarb tapioca.

RHUBARB TAPIOCA.

3 cups pink tender rhubarb cut in small pieces (unpeeled)
1½ cups boiling water
½ cup quick tapioca
1¼ cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt

All ingredients to hot water in double boiler. Cook for one-half hour or until rhubarb is soft, stirring frequently. Chill and serve with whipped cream. If too thick, more water may be stirred in before serving.

We are indebted to Mrs. L. Mat[illegible], No. 31 Banks terrace, Swampscott for chatty sandwiches.

CHATTY SANDWICHES.

1 cup chopped tongue
1 egg
1 tsp. onion juice
1 cup milk
2 tbsps. mayonnaise dressing, spread on thin slices of unbuttered bread.

Press slices together and cut in two diagonally. Beat 1 egg; add 1 cup milk. Dip sandwiches in this mixture. Brown them in a small amount of butter—first one side, then the other. Garnish with parsley and serve at once on a hot platter.

And also for Country Club sandwiches.

COUNTRY CLUB SANDWICHES.

Butter slices of bread. On each slice lay thin cuts of cooked sausage. Cover with a well-seasoned tomato sauce and sprinkle with grated cheese. Lay a strip of bacon on each sandwich and bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp. This sandwich may be served with a potato or a mixed vegetable salad.

Wouldn't it be fun to find your recipe here next week? Just send it along and see.

Faithfully,
MARTHA LEE.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

MANY a man who lazily writes "I love you," in the sand, at this time of year, would shiver at the idea of writing it in indelible ink.

When love dies, a woman likes to give it a beautiful burial—but a man always insists on bringing the "next woman" to the funeral.

Watch out! It takes only one or two evenings under a Summer moon to turn a Spring romance into lifelong matrimony!

• • •

Somehow, the One Big Love never seems to come to a woman until she has decided that keeping "Open Heart" is a foolish waste of energy—and has locked the door and thrown away the key.

Many a man is washed up at a girl's feet on a wave of emotion, at this season; but luckily he usually "recedes" before she can anchor him.

After forty-five a man might as well give up the struggle and get married; because he is going to grow bald and grouchy or fat and flabby, anyhow.

• • •

Any man who can look into a girl's eyes, in the moonlight, and give her an accurate definition of love, wouldn't know the emotion if he met it face to face.

• • •

Loneliness is not solitude; it is company without companionship—like so many marriages.

His choice Puffed Wheat when it isn't Puffed Rice

MEN like Benjamin Bird, men whose minds and bodies both must be active and efficient all day, every day, need right food for breakfast.

That's why so many folks eat Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice. There are no other cereals like them. They are steam puffed to 8 times natural size, then richly oven toasted. They digest easily and turn quickly to energy.

The flavor is like toasted nutmeats, only richer. The Puffed Wheat contains approximately 20% bran, besides important whole wheat elements. The rice embodies the vigor-building properties of fine carbohydrate food, which means so much to health.

Different in every way—in taste, form and deliciousness—they mark the rare combination of food that's "good" for you but that you eat because you love it. Children love them like confections.

Today get Quaker Puffed Wheat—or Quaker Puffed Rice—at your grocer's. They're the "something different" that you crave.

The RED LAMP

CHAPTER XXXVII.

August 24th.

"THE strings of small bells, fastened across the closed and shuttered windows, frequently vibrated as though a hand had been drawn across them."

(From "Eugenia Riggs and Her Phenomena.")

Any coherent record of our last night's experiment is difficult today; not only do last night's alarms always seem absurd in today's sunshine, but I am not at all certain now that I did not build up, out of my recent reading and what I knew about the house, a [illegible] of my own.

Halliday's Experiment

"I would like," he explained, "to reproduce conditions as nearly as they were the night you saw the figure here." He smiled. "I don't suppose you really want to go and stand at the head of that staircase, Skipper, but I'm going to ask you to, just the same."

I looked up the staircase nervously. "If you are going to reproduce the previous conditions," I protested, "you may recall that I had a revolver at that time!"

"I also seem to remember that you fired it," he said, and grinned at me. "It will answer every purpose, and be considerably safer, if you will merely point your finger at me and say 'crush!'"

But no amount of lightness on his part or mine could do more than temporarily lift the gloom; the shadow of tragedy hung over everything at which we looked. Halliday felt it, and suggested that "we get to work and then get out."

The question in his mind, he said, was this: I had said that, a second or so after the shot and the disappearance of the figure, the red light had died out in the den. If, as he believed was possible, this glow came from the lamp upstairs, brought [illegible] from a [illegible] lamp, this required that the man I saw had time to go into the den, extinguish the lamp and conceal it (since it wasn't in evidence later on), get back to the library, and be ready to leave by the broken window before he, Halliday, had turned on the light.

"It's a matter of time," he said. "I was by the terrace when I heard the shot. I figure it took me ten seconds to pick up the chair, run to the window and smash it."

It was nervous work going up the staircase, but I managed it and took up my position. He stood below.

I fired—theoretically—and he did what the figure had done, moved toward the door, still facing me, turned and went into the library. I heard him moving about and the light went out. Then in the darkness he ran into the library again, where he struck a match.

"Twenty seconds," he called.

His voice trailed off; his shadow extended through the den doorway into the hall, and as I watched it, it shows the condition of my nerves that it did not seem to be his shadow at all, but something quite different. For all the world like an old man in a dressing gown. Then the match went out and I heard him coming out into the hall again.

New Mystery

"Did you move a minute ago?" he asked.

"Move!" I said. "I wouldn't move for a million dollars. Strike a light."

"Funny," he said. "I thought I heard something."

He groped his way back to the den, and the red lamp looked actually cheerful after the complete darkness. I heard him go into the library again and apparently stand there and listen, and very shortly after he reappeared and asked me to change places with him.

"See how you can make it, Skipper," he said.

I came down rather more rapidly than I had gone up, and Halliday took my former position. I had never had any particular stomach for the business, and now my one idea was to get it over. I did as Halliday had done, moved to the library door, turned and then, more or less holding my breath, dived into the library and through it to the den. I brought up there, close to the red lamp, caught my foot in the cord and jerked it from the socket. Instantly we were in darkness again and in absolute silence. Halliday, I believe, was still leaning over the stair-rail, waiting for me to complete the movement, and the sudden plunge into darkness had startled me more than I care to remember.

But I do remember that in a sort of panic I got down on my knees to feel for the connection, and that at that moment, whether due to overstrained nerves or not I cannot say, I distinctly heard a soft movement in the library. Trying to analyze that movement today I find it difficult. It was as though the linen coverings in the library had been set in motion, a soft and quiet motion, like that perhaps of a woman with a fan, and above that the faint clink of the prisms on the chandelier, like the ringing of small bells. But whatever had caused it, it was dying away when I noticed it. As if somehow the extinction of the light had taken away its source of power.

(Note: It is to be observed that we secured this phenomenon later during the seances. As no explanation of it has ever been given, it remains a portion of that unsolved factor in our equation to which I have referred previously.)

Professor Alarmed

I knelt there, my face covered with a cold sweat, staring in the direction of the library door. I felt that if I looked away, if I were to lower my guard for an instant, something would come through that door.

I was, in effect, holding it back with my eyes!

And Halliday had made no sound. He too, I now know, was listening.

This, as accurately as I can record it, was the situation last night when the next move came. The house was absolutely silent again. Halliday was upstairs, and I was watching the door into the library, when the location of the sounds changed. Protected by my eyes, in front, I was attacked from the rear, so to speak. At the window above and behind me, something was trying to get in. I could hear its hands sliding slimily over the wood of the shutter, keeping on that blind and dreadful groping, until finally some sort of hold was secured and the shutter was shaken.

"Halliday!" I shouted. "Halliday!"

He came downstairs; rather he leaped down the stairs. He says he found me in a corner, gibbering, and I dare say he did, but I must have told him my story with sufficient clearness, at that, for he left me alone again in that damnable place and ran outside. And as I had no intention whatever of being left alone again for the remainder of my life, I ran also. There was nobody outside the window, but the fresh green paint was the thing that, according to Halliday, saved me from being sent today to some sanctuary for the mentally deranged.

It showed unmistakable signs of entirely human investigation. At least a hand with the usual equipment of thumb and fingers has left more than one impression on it.

Later: And now where are we? I am willing, even anxious, to accept Halliday's verdict, that the sounds we both heard in the library were due to an east wind blowing down the chimney, plus the settling and creaking of the old portion of the house.

But we have just returned from an inspection, in broad day, of the marks outside the boarded-up window of the den.

There is a complete imprint of the hand on it, and it shows a broad short thumb and a curved little finger. What is more, there is a complete absence of the usual whorls and ridges of the ordinary hand. One could take this imprint and put it side by side with the one in the bowl of putty. They are identical.

How to Lose Freckles, Tan or Redness

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the tennis court or golf links, a sunbath on the beach or exposure on a water trip, often brings on a deep tan or vivid crimson or, more perplexing still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary thing then is Mercolized Wax, which removes tan, redness or freckles quite easily. It literally peels off the affected skin—just a little at a time, so there's no hurt or inconvenience. As the skin comes off in almost invisible flaky particles, no trace of the treatment is shown. Get an ounce of Mercolized Wax at your druggist's and use this at night as you would cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Soon you will have an entirely new skin, beautifully clear, transparent, delicately white

When Creed and Romance Clash -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

We Met at the Office. "We May as Well Call Quits." "I Sent Him a Christmas Box." It Would Be Wiser to Give Him Up.

CAN you marry one of a different religion—if to do so violates a tenet of your own religion—and still expect happiness?

This question torments thousands of young men and women. [illegible]

I shall not discuss the wisdom of such tenets in this column—to do so would be an impertinence. But let us discuss the wisdom of going counter to one's own religious convictions when it comes to marriage.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Marie, "last Fall I was advanced at the office. I became acquainted with a young man who is everything one could wish for in a life partner.

"For three months our friendship was ideal. In these short months [illegible]

"Finally, one Sunday night, he said:

"'I dare not tell you that I love you, because it would not amount to anything in the end.'

"After a long silence I said, 'Well, then, we may as well call quits.'

"I thought it all over and wrote him, thinking perhaps he would tell me more. Then he called me up at the office.

"'I did not answer your letter, little girl,' he said, 'because I could not explain more than I did Sunday night.'

"In my letter I had written: 'Maybe [illegible] someone else—or [illegible].'

"I think it is religion and he does not want to discuss it. I know that he loves me.

"After that whenever he passed my office he would wave or speak if it was forty times a day.

"He got a promotion at the office and left on a long business trip. He called to say good-bye. He talked to me so attentively that those eyes of his seemed to go through me.

"He had been gone one week when I received a long letter telling of his trip, hoping I was taking good care of myself and that he would hear from me soon.

"At Christmas I sent him a box of home-made candy, also handmade handkerchiefs, and I took a chance and sent my photograph.

"I received a letter from him raving over the box, including the wonderful picture of one uppermost in his mind! He sends me all kinds of remembrances.

"But as time goes on my heart aches and I wonder whether I should keep up the correspondence.

"Everyone at the office says he loves me and that the 'something' that separated us is religion.

"MARIE."

Your friend is devoted to you beyond the shadow of doubt, Marie, even as you are devoted to him. But it is equally evident from your letter that an obstacle, which he considers insurmountable, prevents his ever wedding you. He has [illegible] you this frankly. He has tried to break away from you.

Because you care for each other, it is wiser to cease going about with him, encouraging an affection that must be hopeless. You need not [illegible] or in a cruel way. But write shorter, impersonal letters. Tell him that you are beginning to realize that your friendship is hopeless and unwise.

You can best help both him and yourself, dear Marie, by putting him out of your life except as a loved memory.

listening only to the sound in her ear—the sound of Central ringing Tony Gaines' house.

Her heart, her brain, and every nerve in her body seemed to be waiting for him to answer.

Moms talked on. "If you girls would only listen to what I tell you once in a while you'd get along better," she was saying, as she went around the hall, kicking the rugs back into place. "When I was a girl did I telephone the young men I knew? I did NOT, let me tell you."

"They didn't have phones when you were a girl, Moms," spoke up Jinny, coming in from the porch, looking flushed and ruffed.

"They did, too!" snapped Moms. "How old do you think I am, for goodness sakes! And don't you be so pert or you'll go upstairs to bed."

Merry put one hand over the mouthpiece of the telephone.

"Did you see a letter of mine on that table a while ago, Jinny?" she asked anxiously.

Jinny shook her red head.

"Maybe Cassie did," she answered. "She was sitting here in the hall for quite a while, waiting for Morey Kaufman."

"Where is she now?" asked Merry sharply. "It would be just like her to open that letter and read it. She's so nosey!"

She turned to the telephone as Central spoke into her ear. "They do not answer," said Central, and with a little groan Merry hung up the receiver.

With slow, dragging feet she went upstairs to her own room.

"Cassie may have put the letter up here for me," she thought, but without much hope. Cassie wasn't given to doing kind acts for anybody.

To Send Back Ring

There was no long white envelope tucked among the bottles and boxes that cluttered the dresser. Nor was it in Cassie's room when Merry went there to look for it.

As she started back to her own room an automobile horn honked hoarsely below the windows. Looking out, Merry saw Derrick backing his "tin can," as he called it, out into the street.

Beside him, proud as a peacock, sat Jinny!

"Now, I just wonder what they're up to," Merry said to herself, a puzzled look in her sea-green eyes.

She watched the little car until it vanished into the leafy tunnel of trees that arched Chester street in the summer time.

Then, with a shrug, she turned back to her mirror and slipped out of the dress she had worn all day.

In the deepening dusk of the room her reflection glimmered like silver. Against its whiteness, Tony Gaines' ring of gold and pearl gleamed brightly. It caught Merry's eye, and a sudden thought flashed into her mind.

His ring! That was why he had written to her! To ask her to send back his ring!

"Well, I just will," Merry found herself saying bitterly, as she held it in her palm and looked down at it. "I'll send it back this very night."

She went to the head of the stairs.

"Moms!" she called down into the darkness, "have you a little cardboard box that you don't need?"

The screen door slammed as Moms came in from the porch and up the stairs.

"What do you want with a cardboard box?" she asked, curiously, standing in the doorway of Merry's room.

"I want to send this back to Tony Gaines," Merry answered. She held out the ring on the palm of her hand.

Wide-eyed, Moms stared first at it and then at Merry.

"When did he give it to you?" she asked. "Why didn't you show it to me? Why do you keep everything from me the way you do? You treat me as if I were your worst enemy instead of your mother!" Her voice was shaky.

Mother's Revelation

"No, I don't," Merry answered. "I would have told you about this ring—only—only—" She couldn't go on. She shook her head and turned toward the window with brimming eyes and quivering chin.

She was still standing there with her back to the room when her mother banged a box down on the dresser, some five minutes later.

"Now, then, Merry!" she began in firm tones. "I want you to turn around here and tell me what's wrong. After all, I'm your mother, and I've a right to know what's happening in your life. Have you and Tony quarrelled?"

Merry, standing with downcast eyes, nodded her head.

"He was jealous of me," she said, telling her mother only a part of the truth.

Moms nodded. "I thought so!" she cried. "I was sure of it that night when you were out with Morley Kaufman's fat friend—"

"But Tony didn't know I was out with Bill Erskine," Merry cut in. "I haven't seen him since then."

Moms stared. "Of course, he knew you were out that night," she said. "Didn't I tell you he was here that night?"

Merry groaned. "No—you never told me," she answered, her voice heavy with despair. "Oh, Moms, why didn't you tell me about his being here?"

"Well, I suppose because I forgot about it!" her mother snapped. "It's a wonder that I don't forget to breathe with all the work and worry I have lately! Why, yes, Tony was here that night. He came right after you drove away, and I told him where you were. I had to tell him. He asked me."

Stunned, Merry could only look at her with her big eyes.

"Everything's against me," she thought. "First, Moms forgets to tell me Tony was here. Then he writes to me and the letter gets lost. I must be jinxed!"

But there was still the telephone. Still the chance of getting him on the wire, to ask him to come over to see her.

"If I could just see him for a minute or two!" she thought, desperately. For she was sure that once she was in Tony's arms she could make him forgive her—make him take her back—make him take her with him to Montana, or wherever it was that he was going.

She made up her mind to bury her pride, and to beg him to take her back.

"He's just got to! He's just got to!" she said to herself as she flew downstairs once more.

"Oh, Lord, please let him be at home! Let him answer the telephone!" she found herself praying silently, as she gave the number of the Gaines house. "I've just got to talk to him tonight!"

Almost at once a woman's voice spoke to her ear.

"Yes?" it asked quietly.

Tony's Gone

"May I speak to Mr. Gaines—to Mr. Anthony Gaines?" Merry's breathless voice shook.

"Who is this, please?" the cool voice asked, and Merry told who she was.

"Oh, yes, Miss Locke! Well Tony's gone out of town, Miss Locke," the voice went on. "You knew he was going out to Montana, didn't you? He left the house not more than an hour ago."

Merry never knew what she answered. She never remembered hanging up the receiver and stumbling out onto the front porch.

Her [illegible] found her there an hour afterward, face downward on the cushions. She shook her by the shoulders gently.

"Wake up, Merry," she said. "You can't sleep out here. You'll get your death of dampness in this night air."

Merry sat up. "I wasn't asleep," she answered in a cold, dull voice, and went upstairs.

"Well, I've nothing left now but my job," she said aloud to her reflection in the mirror. "But—I should worry!"

She was too broken hearted to know that she was. Too broken-hearted to cry, even! She felt nothing but a great weariness, like a runner after a long race.

She got into bed and slept dreamlessly all night. That night marked the finish of something sweet and fine that had touched her life with magic. Something that never came again.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Cassie tells Merry why she thinks Tony Gaines left town. Merry gets a special delivery letter. Read tomorrow's installment of "Tarnished Wings."

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1.—Is it proper to have a matron of honor as well as a maid of honor?

2.—If so, which should I choose—a younger married sister or a very dear friend? I should like to have both attend me.

3.—If my sister acts as matron of honor, is it correct to have her husband as the best man, since my fiance has no very close friend?

4.—My fiance has only one brother, who is married. Should he be one of the bridegroom's attendants?

VERY ANXIOUS.

YES.

2.—Usually the bride chooses a sister for her maid of honor or matron of honor. Why not have both, one a maid of honor and one as matron of honor, or if both are married, have two matrons of honor.

3 and 4.—The choosing of the best man is the privilege of the groom. The groom usually chooses his brother—why doesn't your fiance invite his brother to be his best man? This would be the best taste and according to the usual form. It is correct to have your sister's husband as the best man, but it would not be according to the usual custom, when the groom has a brother. I should think that the groom's brother would expect to be invited to be his brother's chief attendant.

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

THEN May, too, must have noticed it. And Tarasov would not kneel or crouch. It is not in his nature to sneak or hide. He had no reason to conceal himself on this occasion. Going around and around in a circle of speculation, I always came back to the certainty that if Tarasov had stood outside the window May would have noticed his shadow. She had been completely unaware of the shadow which I myself had only half noticed. Ergo—it was not Tarasov who had disturbed us.

If Tarasov was not the eaves-dropper, who could it be?

The logical person seemed Nicholas Perry. Yet there didn't seem much reason for him to come sneaking up to the Birches in broad daylight. And his alibi seemed to be established, together with that of Arlette, when he dropped in at six on his way home from a trip to town on which the younger Valleau girl had accompanied him.

"We suddenly realized that Arlette had no glad rags to wear to the wedding tomorrow," said Nick nonchalantly, as he strode around the room with his usual air of [illegible] responsibility for and proprietorship in the Birches. "So off we went to town. And we bought ourselves the gladdest rags you ever saw——"

"How was it that you didn't exercise your rights and ask me to drive you in?" I inquired.

"Takes too long," said Nicholas indifferently. "We were impatient. And anyway it was a schoolboy and schoolgirl lark——"

"Not requiring a chaperone?" I appended with rising inflection.

"Precisely."

There was an almost satanic lift to my visitor's eyebrows as he scrutinized me and then turned to Arlette with an inscrutable:

"Tell her about the rags, Letty."

I have never heard any one nickname Arlette before. I think I must have started noticeably. For again there was something "satanic" in the manner of Nicholas Perry, though this time he only laughed. But it was Arlette who claimed the centre of the stage as she cried rapturously:

"I have me one lovely frock—and the coat she match. It so soft she float. And she make all from brown and yellow—like the woods in Autumn. And also is for me a little green suit with a dress to match."

"Perfect dryad garments," said Nicholas Perry dryly. "But the description had best be human. They called the green costume kasha and foulard. The wedding clothes for the sister of the bride are chiffon and crepe roma, I am told. And the [illegible] wreathed in yellow flowers, while the other gets a felt hat that a young Robin Hood or Peter Pan might wear a-hunting"—

"With shoes and stockings and gloves for those," Arlette said rapturously, "I could go on honeymoon of my own."

Nicholas Perry looked up. His eyelids seemed sinister. I had never before noticed how much those eyelids are like the unwinking ar- wrinkled skin above the eyes of an eagle or a hawk. They are old. They make Nicholas Perry an ancient. But when he looked up again he was once more the Viking.

"Why shouldn't little Arlette have beautiful clothes?" he asked. "I am coming into money. Her youth is coming into its own—some day. Why postpone the day? We must be going, my child. We have had a long day. We started [illegible]."

Arlette opened her lips to speak, but thought better of it and said nothing. And they went without my finding out why they had come—unless it was to prove that they had gone to town early.

Nicholas Perry did not convince me by his alibi. And he left me wondering—who cast the shadow across my studio floor? Will it also cast a shadow across my life?

[illegible] crept on me apace all during the day before May Valleau's wedding. The reflection on my studio floor assumed sinister proportions as I thought of the possibilities it foreshadowed.

DAILY SHORT STORY

SELBY'S SCOOP

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

"WE'RE not satisfied with your stuff, Selby," said Brickley, the city editor, with his nearest possible approach to kindness. "It's a funny thing, too, that we've taken three years to find it out. But we could see you tried like blazes, and that counts for a lot.

"This paper, you may know, is called the Comet; not the Dead Meteor or Fallen Star; otherwise the stories you bring in would go good. I cannot see why you hang on to a reporter's job anyway. You are married to a woman who owns the subway or something, aren't you? A woman with lots of jack?"

Selby, a straw-like man, blond to yellowness, thin and studious looking, took his dismissal as though it meant the loss of cabbage-and-weiners to him. Even under ordinary conditions Brick had more power to terrify him than the Evil One himself. Brick, sitting in judgment upon him, was an unbearable horror.

"You mean that I— I am discharged?"

"Your discernment," returned Brick, callously grave, "is extraordinary. That's what I've been insinuating. Selby, see here, man!" . . . Brick pointed a blue-pencil into the small man's vest. . . . "You are no more cut out to be a newspaper man than I am to lead singing at a temperance convention. I don't know 'Home Sweet Home' from a Russian fox trot, anyway.

"You do not know [illegible] material for almanacs. We can't let you write for the magazines. You have style. . . . That's a handicap, also, when you are talking to people who think obstreperous is a [illegible] and could not find a split infinitive in a schoolboy's first composition.

"In three years you haven't brought in a thing really worthwhile. You would leave the Woolworth building to fall down without a write-up if you thought there was an organ-punisher singing 'Pagliacci' a block beyond. You just don't see the big things.

"I've never made a . . . scoop . . . is that what you mean?"

"Scoop? Yes . . . scoop. I guess that's what the cubs call it. I did not think you had heard of scoops."

Selby flushed. Brick was always a mean brute. The only milk of human kindness in him was buttermilk. He felt more contempt than sorrow for this little failure.

"Well, here's as is," he announced, destroying some fresh copy with a gouging pencil. "You have thirty days' notice. That's a life-time around this joint. It will give you a chance to look up a place elsewhere.

"Try the Sunday school organs or become a cartoonist. If you are wise, you will get out of the game. I am telling you this for your benefit. You are too damned genteel. You're not tough enough, Selby. Say, aren't you married to Ines Medard, the girl who cleaned up a million on a funny play? If so, why do you fool around with a lot of roughnecks in a news-room?"

"That's my affair, Mr. Brickley," retorted Selby with dignified coolness.

"Grr!" muttered Brick. "Poor and ponderous. I do not twine my perceptive tendrils about your psychology. But, after all, it must be worse than work to have a wife with a million. Sort of gives her a free rein, and that is dangerous for a woman."

"It is," agreed Selby.

Brick raised his wicked brows.

"Oy, I sniff a mices. That's your affair, though. You have a month in which to do something for the Comet. Here is a bargain—make a—er—scoop in that month and we'll keep you on."

Selby regarded the editor with the same lack-lustre calm.

"All right. I'll make the scoop, Mr. Brickley. But you can take your job to the devil."

"You're too boisterous, Selby," grinned Brick, adding a fresh goat to his gotten collection. "Depart and find a rough tea party to feature before you kiss us goodby."

Selby went with a laugh. Brick, case-hardened as he was, felt a chill at the heart when he heard that laugh. It was a barren sort of mirth. It was a snarling laugh—from a mild-mannered little man.

"Queer egg," said Brick, and fell, temper and pencil, on a sob-story. Yearningly he invoked his particular god to condemn to his very intense inferno the idiot who had written it. Brick was tooth-defying meat.

For twenty-five of his thirty days of grace, Selby turned in the usual anemic copy. Brick sneered at it and prayed for the hour of his deliverance from reading such wash. He had almost forgotten Selby's laugh, until Selby laughed again.

Two hours after midnight of his twenty-fifth day Selby staggered into the news-room. Selby, the timid, shy Selby, was drunk and crazy drunk.

He was at a typewriter before the riot he had raised came near subsiding. He was the fastest man there on the keys. The liquor seemed to drive him faster. That laugh sent icy shivers down the collective, journalistic spine, just as it had stopped Brick's heart with a frigid finger.

Selby was done. He gathered up five sheets of copy and dashed to the cubby-hole where Brick occasionally refuged. He kicked the door open and left it open for a score of eager eyes to watch. He pounded his work down on the desk under Brickley's nose.

"There's your scoop, Mr. Brickley. And now you can go to the devil. Oh yes, it's a big scoop. It is good for the front-page spread—Ines Medard, the girl who made a million, shot by her penniless and jobless husband. Reason — constant reminder of his own poverty, fear of being dependent on her—infidelity on her part, rotten infidelity. Dates and parties given. Incidentally you may tell the police I am here. And you can tell the world I'm glad I did it."

ANSWER TO PUZZLE NO. 241

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

CONTENTMENT rings me round about within my hillside home; I have no pangs of cruel doubt, I feel no wish to roam. The happy days slip swiftly by, bright beads on time's dull string, and as joy-freighted hours fly my glad thoughts soar and sing. Yet, when I seek the harbor town on some small errand bent, the great ships' sails, all gray and brown, make mock of my content. The great ships ever lure and call as they go down to sea; how gladly would I leave my all for ocean's mystery! How gladly would I say goodbye to meadow, field and hill, to sail between blue sea and sky, farther and farther still. Now I have lived my whole life long ringed round by verdant hills, and yet, to ships and sea-winds' song my being strangely thrills!

FOXY GRANDPA'S INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

THE Autumn wind blew in our faces as we tramped along the road and I thought that Bunny took longer leaps than I'd ever seen him take in his life as he tore on ahead of us. Suddenly he stopped short, swerved into a great curve and came back to us making a half circle from the point where he had stopped. Then he gave a leap and landed right in my pocket.

"What is it, Bunny?" I asked.

"You'll see," he replied. I'm safe now, as long as I'm in your pocket, but you keep right on. I want you to see it."

Now I couldn't imagine what the little rabbit had on his mind. When we got to the place where he had so quickly come to a halt, I saw what had attracted his attention, but I couldn't understand why he was so frightened.

"Why Bunny," I said, "I never knew you to shy at a rabbit warren before."

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bunny, "If that had been a rabbit warren I most certainly wouldn't have passed it. I would have gone in and paid my respects. But I want to keep as far as possible from that particular kind of warren. But you just stay near and see if some of the family don't come out. You'll be surprised."

"I certainly will wait," I said, and Bobby and I hid behind a bush from where we had a good view of the mysterious hole in the ground.

We waited and waited and then finally we saw a long sharp nose come poking out of the hole. Bunny gave a terrific shudder as a big red fox came out very quietly, sniffed the air and ran off into the woods.

"Wait and you may see the babies," said Bunny in a trembling voice, and I knew that he was being very unselfish in wanting us to remain there, because as you know, there's no animal in the world of which Bunny is more afraid than a fox. So I patted the little fellow and said:

"Thank you, Bunny. I think we will wait a while if you don't mind."

The first thing I knew another nose came poking out of the hole, but it wasn't like a fox's nose at all. And no wonder! Because out of that hole came a gray animal with powerful jaws and long, fine hair. With her, came five babies.

"Why, they're not foxes at all," I whispered, as they disappeared in the woods.

"Sh!" came from my pocket, and when Bunny tells me to shush, I shush. Again we waited. And again out came another nose. This time it certainly was a fox's nose. Out came Mrs. Fox and with her four of the cutest baby foxes you ever saw in all your life, and off they trotted into the woods.

"Now we can go on," said Bunny. But I noticed that he didn't make any move to get out of my pocket.

When we were some distance away I took Bunny out of my pocket and held him in my arms. Then I said:

"Now, Bunny, tell me. What was that other animal, and what does it all mean?"

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bunny, "that other animal with her babies was a badger, and what fierce creatures they are!"

"But what were they doing in the fox's den?" I exclaimed.

"Oh!" said Bunny, "they all live together. At the end of that warren are two chambers, one is the nursery, where Mrs. Fox brings up her children, and the next one is where Mrs. Badger and her family live."

"That's a surprise to me," I said.

"Oh," declared Bunny, "foxes and badgers like the two-family house arrangement very much."

END BUNION PAIN FOREVER

No Need to Suffer Another Day Those Agonizing Torturing Pains.

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from such enlargements would be wise to reduce them before they reach a more or less chronic stage.

Ask any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

STEEL STILL LEADER OF MARKET

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

"Oh [illegible] see my white plume wave amid the ranks of war.
And [illegible] oriflamme today the helmet of Navarre!"

Somehow reminding us of the above lines, U. S. Steel in decidedly picturesque fashion proves that it still retains leadership of the stock market, the leadership it has held for so many years. "As goes steel, so goes the market," is an old saying. It is true that Steel has generally been a rather reliable market index. Sometimes actual leadership has been relinquished to some co-leader, such as General Motors, for example, but more frequently the so-called "Four Horsemen," Steel, Can, Studebaker and General Motors, have gone thundering side by side. Note that recently Studebaker has not been a leader in the upswing.

Cutting the costs is the slogan of modern business. This in large is novel services of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in arbitrating differences between two member organizations. Charles R. Gow, prominent in construction circles; William P. F. Ayer, a former vice-president of Walworth, and Attorney Joseph Wigging, the three members of the first board of its kind blazed a trail which is likely to go far in trade circles where many express extreme dissatisfaction over the extreme delays incurred in other methods of settling inevitable disputes.

All the important morning newspapers yesterday carried the erroneous statement that Packard had declared a $5 extra dividend, when in fact the extra was but 50 cents. This is the second motor dividend incorrectly reported from Detroit. The previous fiasco concerned Hudson and a Stock Exchange inquiry was followed, as predicted in this column, by a coat of whitewash.

All the important morning newspapers today cite the fact that Packard registered a new high price yesterday, but they mostly fail to mention that this price was recorded while the public was still reading about an alleged $5 dividend that was only one-tenth of that amount. The writer has received complaint from at least one person who bought the stock at the opening on the supposition a $5 extra had been declared; a good many must have done so.

There are dividends and dividends, it seems, just as in old days there were gifts and gifts, when men were told to "beware of the Greeks bearing gifts," in re the wooden horse placed before the walls of Troy. Not a horse but an automobile figures in the modern version, which may be read: "Beware of Detroit-bearing dividends," which means until they have been verified.

George Mylius, a director of the Bank, of Italy, president of the Banca Italo-Britannica, deputy-chairman of British-Italian Banking Corporation, Ltd., and president of the Italian Cotton Manufacturers' Association, said before sailing for home from Boston after representing Italy at the Denver Rotary convention:

"Italy is making steady economic progress against numerous handicaps. The spirit of the people is excellent. It is guided by resolute and intelligent governmental direction, now aided increasingly by the best business and banking advice.

"The keynote in Italy today is effort and efficiency, with the cutting out of waste and leaks, in material or in personnel. The government gets much more done with many fewer on the payroll. Particularly the aim is to limit non-essential imports, which mean so much to a country that has to buy so many stables abroad, such as coal, grain, wool, oil, cotton, iron, wood and woodpulp.

"We now have a good budget surplus where the annual deficits had been huge. On real balance of trade this year we may break about even. In this connection our wheat harvest will be a disappointment, due to excess rain in April and May. Breaking even means for us an import excess of about $1,000,000 a day, or $365,000,000 a year, as offset in a greater part by two 'invisible' items of emigrant remittances home and tourists' expenditures in Italy. A margin just now may depend on whether the former are correctly estimated at some $200,000,000 or at only $150,000,000 a year."

FINANCE

—By B. C. FORBES—

When you need it very badly, how you welcome help. At some time or other, most of us find ourselves in need of friendly aid and assistance. Many business concerns, especially ones of modest size, have the same experience.

One enterprising city, Los Angeles, has formed a plan, a $12,000,000 plan, to do something about it.

Cities, states, communities are now spending large sums to attract new residents and new industries. Every progressive place welcomes new payrolls. New enterprises mean more workers, more wages, more money to enrich local merchants and others.

Never before was the bidding, the competition to attract new industries as keen as it is today.

But, having induced various people to start new concerns, how many communities or cities have any machinery, any organization willing and financially able to render assistance when need arises? Is it not true that most communities feel they have done their whole duty when they succeed in getting a new enterprise to come and open its doors?

But you and I know that lots of infant enterprises go through as many "diseases" as human infants, and that the death rate among them is very high when the right kind of advice and succor are not available.

Los Angeles is setting up a corps of physicians and nurses, properly equipped, to take care of sickly local concerns.

There has been organized there the Industrial Foundation of America, in the form of an investment trust, with a capital stock of $12,000,000, to aid infant industries in need of working capital. It is when a concern needs working capital very badly that nobody, as a rule, wants to supply it.

How to raise sums ranging from $50,000 to $250,000 or $500,000 usually is a harder problem than raising $1,000,000 or $5,000,000 or $10,000,000 by large companies, because there are plenty of bankers and other underwriters ready to float new security issues of magnitude, whereas there is little or no machinery for supplying the smaller sums.

There is room in many places for an organization of this kind.

But, of course, those behind it must be thoroughly honest and something more. They must possess financial and business judgment and must engage men of high calibre to make appraisals, formulate reorganization plans and furnish managerial direction.

The idea is right. To apply it successfully is not easy. But it can be done.

Let Chambers of Commerce in other cities give this matter earnest consideration.

COTTON PLANS TO BE KNOWN ON JULY 20

Committee of ten cotton manufacturers which represents the industry in the movement to obtain better business through co-operative effort will complete tentative plans for the formation of a Cotton-Textile Institute at a meeting to be held in the Biltmore Hotel, New York, Tuesday, July 20.

Members of this committee have completed a study of the situation in the industry and will prepare a statement containing a recommendation that a cotton-textile institute be created as a means of solving problems now confronting the manufacturers. This statement will be presented to the gathering of mill men which will convene in New York at a date which will be announced later.

"The cotton-textile institute," declared Robert Amory, "will be the only organization in the cotton industry composed entirely of mill executives and because of this fact it will be the only unit in which the mill heads can meet to discuss problems and to act upon them immediately. It will provide the members with statistics on production and will give a great deal of information which is now practically unavailable to the great majority of manufacturers.

"We feel that much can be done through the textile institute in studying the possibilities of developing new markets through creating new uses for cotton. Co-operation on the part of the whole industry will make for greater economy both in manufacturing and the distribution of the products.

"More than 16,000,000 cotton spindles were represented at the gathering of mill men in New York, June 10, and we are confident that at least 75 per cent. of all the cotton spindles in the United States will be represented when the meeting is called for action upon the recommendation of the committee of the creation of a textile institute."

UNITED FRUIT'S PROFITS UP

United Fruit profits for the March-June quarter just ended showed the same unexpected resiliency that they have displayed on occasional periods of uncertainty in the past. Despite unseasonably cold weather, which always retards distribution, and despite large banana receipts, the net for the second quarter ran up to $8,000,000, or $1,000,000 more than the $7,000,000 figure for the second quarter of 1925 and $3,000,000 more than the 1924 total of $5,000,000 for the second three months.

The explanation of this showing undoubtedly lies in the increased efforts directed toward banana selling as evidenced by more aggressive advertising and merchandising methods on all sides. From the time President Cutter assumed office in October, 1924, his big policy has been to widen and to increase distribution and the results of this consistent aim are clearly reflected in a quarter like the last where volume of business was larger and prices lower than in the last two years.

For the half year United Fruit net totaled $12,500,000 approximately as against $13,500,000 in the same period of 1925 and $10,500,000 in 1924. On the present capitalization of 2,500,000 shares net for the half year just ended was $5 a share after all charges save taxes, compared with $5.40 a share in 1925 and $4.20 a share in 1924.

United Fruit has thus already earned its full year's $4 dividend. What the showing for the full year may be is very difficult to forecast at this time in view of the big, competitive domestic fruit crop coming to the market and the big banana yield now apparently assured. Unless the combination, however, tremendously unsettles prices United Fruit should earn for the year in the neighborhood of $20,000,000, or $8 a share, as against $9.01 a share in 1925 and $6.91 a share in 1924.

After the payment of the July 1 dividend United Fruit had the imposing sum of $30,000,000 cash on hand—$8,000,000 more than a year ago. While this strong cash position, coupled with continued strong earning power, holds out the possibility of an increased dividend before the year is over, it is well to bear in mind that a big element in the United Fruit success has been the maintenance of a cash position that enabled it "to do what it wanted"—in other words, to handle every contingency and to utilize any unusual possibilities for profitable expansion.

$600,000,000 in Paint

Present Day Shows Big Change From Times When Washington Saw Unpainted Houses in Boston and Portsmouth

Every working day of the year the United States spends $2,000,000 for paints, according to an Engineering Foundation estimate. This places the national paint bill for the year around $600,000,000.

This is a great departure indeed from the days when our present paint bill for 24 hours would have more than sufficed to feed and equip Washington's Army at Valley Forge throughout the dreary Winter of peril.

It is a departure in a sense that comparatively few people realize. Colonial houses knew no such thing as a coat of paint, whether they were of wood or brick. Paint came much later.

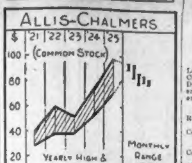
When George Washington as President visited Boston and Portsmouth, he remarked the houses were "almost entirely of wood. On wondering at this, as the country is full of stone and good clay for bricks, I was told that on account of the fogs and damp they deemed them wholesomer, and for that reason preferred wood buildings."

Arrangements for Washington's visit, by the way, were made by Tobias Lear, Washington's private secretary, whose wooden mansion still stands at Portsmouth, N. H., where it is one of the historic sights proudly pointed out to visitors, who are told that Lear's popular nickname was "the brains of Washington." This compliment was paid Lear, of course, because he did so much thinking on behalf of the Father of His Country and contained no essence of disparagement for the great Washington.

Many of the wooden houses that Washington saw in that year of 1789 are still standing and occupied. More would be left if they had been spared the ravages of fire.

Those who see them are compelled to pay tribute to the ability of New England carpentry.

Stock Analysis



Incorporated in 1913, the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company is engaged in the business of manufacturing various types of machinery.

It is one of the largest producers in the world of sawmill and flour mill equipment and other important products include electrical equipment, cement mixers, air compressors, steam, gas and oil engines and pumping machinery.

The plants of the company are located in Wisconsin and at Norwood, a suburb of Cincinnati.

Earnings and income have been fairly well maintained through the comparatively brief history of this organization. During the decade which ended in 1925, the company earned at least $4 a share annually on the common stock.

In 1923 earnings were $5.96 per share, those of 1924 were $8.02, while the 1925 figure was $8.78. The company's financial condition is reported as excellent, since there is no funded debt while at the time of last report there were no bank loans.

Current assets exceed current liabilities at present by about $26,000,000.

Dividends have been paid without interruption on the preferred stock since 1916 at rates which have varied from 7 per cent. to 10½ per cent., the present rate being 7 per cent. Common stock dividends have been paid since 1920, until 1925, at the rate of 4 per cent. In May, 1925, this rate was increased to 6 per cent.

Business of Allis-Chalmers is on the upgrade with indications of touching the highest point in several years. Unfilled orders June 1 were $11,916,000, a gain of more than $500,000 in a month. This is the best showing of the order books since January, 1924. The total on July 1 was around $12,000,000.

A Good Set Lasts Indefinitely

There is nothing in a radio set to wear out. When it ceases to bring in stations properly, the accessories probably need replacing. There are very few moving parts, and it is only between moving parts that wear occurs. The bearing of the tuning condensers, upon which the wear is greatest, are usually so large that they will last several years without adjustment. Other parts will last indefinitely. Dry batteries last but a few months. Storage batteries must be recharged frequently and given a "drink" of water occasionally, if they are to continue to deliver the required current. Tubes become "paralyzed" after they have been in service for many months, and must be replaced. Rough treatment can, of course, cause injury to parts inside the set. If the set is dropped on the floor, or tampered with, repairs may be necessary, although this would hardly be considered as "wearing out."

Harmonics in Radio

Harmonics are incidental waves differing in length and frequency from the natural wave of the transmitting station. A wave-length harmonic is found below the rated wave length of the transmitter and a frequency harmonic is found above the natural frequency of the sending station. These incidental waves are the ones detected by the short-wave receivers when broadcasting stations are heard.

MEN'S LIES TO WIN PRIZES

Do New England men fib more about gold and fishing than they do about other things? This question is addressed to the women. Perhaps there are other pet subjects for male mendacity. The question is: What do New England men lie most about?"

For the best letter written by a New England woman in answer to this question the Boston Evening American will pay $15 and for the second and third best letters, $5 each. Adress your letters to the Ananias Editor, care of the Boston Evening American.

Letters will be published until July 17, but no letter will be received after 6 o'clock on July 16. Jot down your answer, mail it to the Ananias Editor, and you may receive one of the prizes.

"We cannot give too much praise to Mr. Hearst," said Captain Castleman, commander of the department, "for his support of the bills before Congress to do justice to the soldiers who were held here by the immigration law, as well as for his whole hearted aid at all times to the American Legion."

A Pretty Little Boy--and His Microbe Collector

How Many Children Are Sent Out to Play With a Dog or a Cat That Will Get and Bring to the Child Any Disease Germ Within Reach!

In the elevator of a prosperous hotel the other morning you could see these three:

A governess, French; a little boy in her charge, and in charge of both of them a foolish-looking, little, fluffy, long-haired Chinese dog weighing about three or four pounds, its ears and its hair touching the ground. It was one of the dogs that Chinese mandarins are said to carry around in their sleeves.

The nurse carried the dog for a little while, then the little boy held it. Then it ran around on the floor.

And they went out into the street together.

The little boy was carefully washed and carefully dressed. Elaborate leggings and solid shoes protected his legs and feet. He had gloves on his hands.

The nurse took very good care of him.

The little dog ran around and collected microbes and brought them back to the small boy.

Together the three walked along the sidewalk outside of the hotel. The little dog ran to every filthy spot eagerly and galloped back again to be welcomed by the boy and occasionally picked up and embraced.

Wherever there was dust or dirt the small Chinese dog was busy hunting microbes, and he faithfully brought them back again TO THE CHILD, supposed to be protected.

What can be said of the intelligence of fathers and mothers rich enough to protect their children thoroughly and spending part of their money to buy and give to the child a preposterous four-legged collector of microbes to make sure that any diseases within reach will be brought back and probably put in contact with the child's mucous membrane, either in the mouth or nose?

Quite probably the miserable dog was "Mamma's pet," and was sent out with the child to get an airing, with a nurse to care for both.

Every mother of a little boy will pity this little boy, and despise the woman who owns the dog and apparently has no thought for the child.

How many mothers and fathers realize that they hurt their children physically, as this cold-blooded mother hurts hers spiritually, when they actually give to their children microbe collectors as their daily companions?

Keep cats and dogs and germs of disease away from your children.

An Honor Highly Deserved

Senator Reed a Powerful and Very Useful Public Servant

Senators, like stars, differ widely in glory. But in the present galaxy in the Washington upper chamber a luminary which glows with notable brilliance is James A. Reed, of Missouri.

He is that rare example of political and personal courage, a Democrat who dares to be democratic.

He does not pussy-foot. He does not compromise. Whatever his views are, you get them in language the plainness of which you cannot misunderstand.

Such forthrightness is refreshing, regardless of whether you agree or disagree.

His fight against the entanglement of America in the intriguing League of Nations was masterly. He kept the American faith at a time when many of his colleagues fell victims to a mirage.

His exposure of the World Court as simply a trap for the United States remains unanswered because unanswerable.

His conduct of the inquiry into the abuses of prohibition has released into vigorous action the latent growing, popular disgust at snoopery, hypocrisy and the almost fatal betrayal of temperance by fanaticism. It presages, let us hope, early progress toward a saner handling of the liquor problem.

More recently, his extraordinary aptitude as an inquisitor has bared the ominous scandals in Pennsylvania's profligate primary and is laying broad foundations for cleaner political ideals and habits.

This newspaper does not concur in all the opinions of Senator Reed, but it recognizes in him a powerful and very useful public servant, whose example is of enormous value in invigorating our public life.

Reed's neighbors in Kansas City, who have known him intimately for thirty-nine years, are preparing to give him this evening, in their largest auditorium, a non-partisan dinner in testimony of their esteem and appreciation.

Millions of Americans, unable to be present in person on that occasion, will endorse its purpose and underwrite its tribute.

Compulsory Vacations

They Date Far Back

The Reverend Dr. S. Edward Young says vacations do so much good they should be made compulsory by a law that would compel employes to go for a vacation and employers to let them go.

That law was made long ago in the Garden of Eden. The Lord, after six days' work, rested on the seventh day, and ordered men to rest one day every week forever. Thanks to that ruling, nearly all of us have nearly fifty-two days' vacation in the year at least.

The Reverend Dr. Young says "God in His great out of doors waits to touch the noblest in us." The moral of that is, "GET AN AUTOMOBILE, and go out and SEE what the great out of doors is like."

Keeping the Islands Safe for Democracy

QUALIFICATIONS A PUZZLE TO MANY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WILL ROGERS, the comedian, says he gets all his humor from reading about what the Congressmen do in Washington.

Another equally prolific source of humor is found in the qualifications offered to show that men are fitted for high honors or important positions.

Out in the West impassioned oratory was used to let the people know the superlative fitness of a candidate for the principalship of a new million-dollar high school.

He was advocated as best qualified for the place because he was "a real he-man who never had a golf stick in his hands nor wore a fancy tie in his life."

No one questions these virtues, but how they demonstrate that he possesses all the qualifications for the place is vague.

Up until 1905 in China the basis for appointment to public office was an examination in Confucian scriptures!

Occidentals laughed at this topsy-turvy reasoning. But it is no more absurd than the kind of qualities cited as proof that men in these United States are qualified to fill offices requiring both skill and special training.

In the Middle West a few years ago a man was elected to a State office requiring business experience upon the platform that "he had laid the first stones in the foundation of the State House and had built the foundation well."

How being a good mason fitted him for an important place requiring knowledge entirely outside this realm is one of the many mysteries lost in the Sargasso Sea of the mob mind.

In France, of late, a series of gentlemen and ladies have been suggested as qualified for the high honor of the Legion of Honor decoration upon various grounds.

A young lady who has developed extreme skill in wielding a tennis racket; a gentleman who has developed an appreciative and trained series of taste buds so that he can tell the many kinds and dates of wines with his eyes closed; a man who has established a series of gambling casinos. All have been suggested, and in two cases accepted, as qualified for the high honor.

Half of the many brands of qualifications given for high elective offices and select honors are on a level with saying that a certain make of automobile is best for the reason that the old black hen laid two eggs last week.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE IS SAUCE FOR THE GANDER

You talk a lot about the faults of others but, while you have faults, too, you consider them lightly.

You are always bringing up the shortcomings of members of your family but if they turn the tables and draw attention to some of your faults you become angry.

In your own home you do and say just as many disagreeable things as any member of the family.

But you don't like to hear about it.

Why should you expect your life partner to be silent about your disagreeable traits when you talk so much about his or her habits.

You may think that the cross, irritable way in which you reply to questions at home should not be taken so seriously. You think your family should know that you do not feel antagonistic although your words and actions may seem that way.

You think allowance should be made for you.

Are you willing to make allowance for others in the same way you ask it of them?

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

FRANKLIN has made the novel discovery that Society Is Going to the Dogs. Also That You Can't Bank on Women.

Irene is the villainess in the plot. Irene was to become Mrs. Franklin next week—prospect which has filled Franklin with ecstacy for the last three years. This was going to be a Real Marriage—yes, siree. He knew how to pick 'em. None of these flippant flappers for him—not on your life. A good, sweet, sensible, reliable girl like his mother had been—that's what Franklin wanted. And that's what he thought he had found when he met Irene.

No nonsense about Irene. Liked to sew and cook—crazy about children—great hand at nursing—just wild to have a home. Nice little dancer but didn't care to jazz. Willing to help a fellow save. In short, the Perfect Woman.

Such was Franklin's opinion of Irene until yesterday. And then—

They were discussing the wedding. To Franklin's joy Irene wanted a quiet affair. No fuss—just step around to the minister's after they got the license—Everything was coming Franklin's way.

"And now I suppose we'd better take the measurements for the wedding ring," said he, with that sightly addled grin peculiar to prospective grooms.

And THEN it happened.

"Ring?" Irene laughed in her quiet way. "Goodness, Franklin Jones, do you think I'm going to wear one of those silly, sentimental old things."

"Wha—a—a." The astonished Franklin gargled wildly for expression. "Silly—ole fashioned—wha—a—a—a—"

"Why Franklin, what on earth is the matter with you? You act so funny. Don't you know no one wears wedding rings any more? That is—not the really modern girls."

Nice But Modern

"Modern girls?" yelled Franklin, enraged by that loathsome term. "For Pete's sake, when did you become a modern girl?"

"Well, you needn't be so rude about it," sniffed the usually gentle Irene. "Just because I don't smoke and drink and dance the Charleston you needn't think I was born in the Ark. I guess I can be progressive without being vulgar. And if you think I'm going around wearing any such antiquated symbol of slavery as a wedding ring you've got another guess coming, Franklin Jones."

At which point, things arrived at an impasse and stuck there. And now Franklin doesn't know whether he is going to be a married man next week or not. In fact, he isn't even sure that he wants to be a married man. For what chance has a fellow of a happy marriage if his sweetheart won't even prove her love for him by wearing a wedding ring?

A very good chance of happiness, Franklin. As good a chance as any man ever had, even though his wife should don a dozen wedding rings. For the wedding ring has nothing whatever to do with love. The wedding ring is a relic. It is a relic of a time when husbands owned wives and wives bore the token of that ownership in the shape of a ring.

That doesn't mean that wives and husbands didn't love each other then, or that marriages weren't a success, in spite of their legal status. Hearts have always been bigger than human programs. Many a wife with a ring in her nose or on her hand had as free and as buoyant a heart as the most petted little Missis of today.

BARE HAND OR RINGED NOSE—NEITHER CHANGES LOVE.

Ring but a Sign

And by the same token, many a modern wife, without a ring on her hand, can be as slavishly devoted and loyal as any hunk of human flesh who owed her life to her master's whim.

For the ring, or the lack of a ring, has nothing to do with it, Franklin. It's what lies behind that ring, or lack of a ring that counts. If the spirit behind the ring be loving and generous, there is no need of a metal circlet on the hand to prove the fact. And if the spirit be selfish and petty, a solid cable of diamonds won't hide the fact.

So let her wear a ring if she wishes to wear it, or leave it off if she doesn't, Franklin. For it's only a matter of taste and since it's HER hand that is to be decorated or left bare, it's HER taste which should settle the question.

"But how're you going to know they're married if they DON'T wear rings?" queries Franklin in a last despairing yelp.

How're you going to know they are married if they DO, dearie? If they're THAT kind of ladies can't they take 'em off?

MYSTERY OF DOUBLE PERSONALITY DEEP

By Garrett P. Serviss

I OCCASIONALLY receive letters from men and women who are earnest spiritualists, but apparently not at all fanatical in their belief, so that with them one can discuss the subject.

Such a one, a man of much education and refinement of mind, tells me that after having for many years been altogether skeptical he has now come to believe "in the constant contact of our lives with spirit helpers, who sometimes can and do take possession of us."

He gives many instances of phenomena which have served to convince him, and which relate principally to what is called "double personality," and especially to cases in which persons have been inspired to compose music far beyond their normal depth, or to sing in voices widely different from what would be called, or recognized, as their own.

For example, he tells of a lady who asked him to accompany her in a song which she said a certain spirit wished her to sing for the benefit of another lady who was present.

"Imagine my surprise," he continues, "when I found her singing in the bass clef, in a range which I am sure only a few contraltos in the world can reach. You see, she was under the control of a man spirit at the time."

Pith of Question

Right here is the pith of the whole question. Nobody, I suppose, thinks of denying that strange and apparently inexplicable powers are occasionally manifested by persons of susceptible temperament, but to admit that such things occur is not also to admit that they are the result of the action of the spirits of the dead upon, or through, living persons.

That is very far from being an inevitable explanation of double personality. It would rather appear that what we call personality is a divisible thing, and that the whole of it may not be in action at the same time. It is a matter of almost everyday experience that the same persons show at different moments, or in varied circumstances, opposite mental and moral characteristics.

Every man or woman is full of contradictory moods as every plant is of tendencies.

My correspondent says that "early morning when the body and mind are relaxed is a good time to invite spirit suggestion; also when weak with illness or fasting."

But does not that rather indicate than the phenomena are innate, instead of being due to the invasion, or influence, of exterior spirits?

He goes on to say that he understands that occult science is still taught in Asia as it was at the University of Antioch, where Paul studied, and on this he refers to the 12th chapter of the First Epistle to the Corinthians, where the "nine gifts of the spirit" are listed. Of these, he remarks that "most churches admit only the first three or four, though the Quakers seem to have sensed a fifth."

What Paul Said.

This sounds interesting enough to lead one to see what it was that Paul said anyway. Here it is:

After insistently affirming that there are diversities of gifts but only ONE SPIRIT, the apostle goes on: "The manifestation of the spirit is given to every man to profit withal. For to one is given, by the spirit, the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge, by the same spirit; to another faith, by the same spirit; to another the gifts of healing, by the same spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues: but all these worketh that one and the self-same spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will."

That looks as if Paul possessed a pretty deep, though irregular knowledge of psychology, but I see nothing in it to support the spiritualistic hypothesis.

On the contrary Paul takes the greatest possible pains to point out that there is only ONE spirit concerned from beginning to end of the catalogue.

I suspect that if the law which my correspondent thinks should be deduced from the phenomena of "double personality" is ever distinctly brought to light, its active agents will not turn out to be "disembodied spirits."

ON "DEMONSTRATING EQUALITY"

WOMEN SAY they are
The EQUALS of MEN,
And if THAT is
All they want, it Seems CHILDISH to CONTRADICT them,
And not only childish,
But UNNECESSARY,
For give a woman
ENOUGH TIME and she Will contradict HERSELF.
IF women are going to DEMONSTRATE equality,
It seems that SOON
They will be MARRYING
Men and KEEPING them
For their AMUSEMENT.
A clever business woman, for Instance, could AFFORD to Marry A MUSICIAN
Who would BRING MUSIC
INTO HER LIFE after her
Busy day, or A POET
To paint WORD PICTURES
For her, the same as
A MAN marries an artistic OR BEAUTIFUL GIRL to AMUSE and CONSOLE
Him. And if they are NOT EQUAL TO THAT, is it
THAT WOMEN ARE INFERIOR?
